FEARS AIR WAR ON U.S.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP)—Secretary Henry L. Stimson declared today that "I think we are in very great danger of an invasion by air in the contingency that the British Navy should be destroyed or surrendered."

The War Department chief made this statement to the House Foreign Affairs Committee in response to an inquiry by Rep. Fish (R.) of New York.

Stimson previously had endorsed President Roosevelt's bill for lend-lease aid to Britain.

NAVAL TRANSFER

At a subsequent point in his testimony Stimson told the committee he could "foresee conditions under which the Navy could be transferred under conditions very advantageous."

He made that statement when Fish asked whether the war secretary had any objection to putting into the bill a prohibition against giving away any part of the United States Navy. Under the lease-lend bill as presently drawn, warships could be turned over to the British on whatever terms Mr. Roosevelt found acceptable.

Stimson replied to Fish's inquiry with the explanation that the question was one for the secretary of the Navy to answer, bu that he personally would object to such a prohibition because he could envision an "advantageous" transfer. He did not describe conditions under which that might occur.

QUERIED BY FISH

Fish started the questioning by asking whether the secretary thought that, with this country's naval strength, any foreign nation could invade our shores.

"Not now, probably not," Stimson replied slowly.

"Any time this year?" Fish pressed.

"I wouldn't dare say any time this year."

Fish then raised the question whether the United States Army could repel a force of 50,000 troops should they be landed.

"I think they probably could, if the gentleman means a land invasion," Stimson responded, adding that he thought air forces would accompany an attempted invasion by infantry.

"Is there any airplane built which could span the Atlantic, drop bombs here and return across the Atlantic?" Fish inquired.

"Probably not the width of the Atlantic," Stimson said, "but they are rapidly developing in that direction and there are many

Camp Hulen's Boys Prove Their Merit In Hardship Trek

This is the fourth of a series of articles by Austen Lake, American staff correspondent visiting the 211th Coast Artillery (First Corps Cadets) in training at Camp Hulen, Texas.

By AUSTEN LAKE

CAMP HULEN, Texas, Jan. 16—It was raining again, in the mercurial mood so typical of coastal Texas—swirls of moisture which ran in rivulets from the canvas-covered trucks and drooled in spillways from the men's slickers.

A heavy ground-fog veiled the surrounding flats and the going was greasy. But the First Battalion of the 211th Anti-aircraft, inched forward toward Indianola and the high adventure of firing their big sky-guns at live targets.

Officers in motorcycle sidecars sputtered along the convoy, shouting through cupped hands to bear right and keep cautious intervals between the giant lorries and their deadly cargoes. It was an awesome two-mile caravan—a veritable village of men and material uprooting itself from Camp Hulen and transplanting for four weeks at Indianola Beach.

Reconnaissance cars — high-pitched, hard-riding, bull-nosed buses, led each company, clogged with officers and non-coms. Twelve 3-inch guns, with platforms and stanchions folded compactly, rolled at intervals between nine searchlights, three sound detectors, ninety-odd trucks, and odds and ends of gear-bearing vehicles.

The 600 men of the "First" huddled under arched canvas or squinted from drivers' seats, faces ruddy and dripping, the inevitable soggy cigarettes hanging unlighted from their lips.

At Tivoli, a four-corner hamlet where a ramshackle lunch bar offered "Mex-Chili" and "Single Egg 15c" the convoy paused, the men crawling over tailboards and stretching legs. At Port Lavaca, a movie version frontier town of single-story, frame stores, they halted again.

wheels sank into pits and the heavy guns lurched alarmingly. It was rattlesnake country, unfertile and sparsely tenanted.

"Heck," said Private First Class

Then over miles of narrow, oyster-shell roads where rubber tired

BRITISH SINK OWN DAMAGED CRUISER

LONDON, Jan. 16 (INS)—Damaged by fire and bombs in an Italo-German air attack off Sicily, the 9100-ton British cruiser Southampton has been sent to the bottom by the guns of other British war vessels, the admiralty announced today.

Most of the crew was saved when it became necessary to abandon the fire-swept warship.

The Southampton, with the aircraft carrier Illustrious, and the destroyer Gallant, had previously been listed as "damaged" as a result of the severe Italo-German air attack while they were engaged in protecting a convoy of British vessels carrying war supplies to Greece.

Today's announcement said:

"The Admiralty regrets to announce that H.M.S. Southampton, Capt. B. C. B. Brooke, R.N., has become a total loss. As announced on the 14th, she was hit during air attacks on our ships in the Mediterranean, and fire broke out aboard.

"The fire later attained such proportions that it became necessary to abandon ship. The Southampton was subsequently sunk by our own forces when it was found impracticable to tow her to port. The great majority of the crew has been saved."

Although naval circles refused to reveal the number of casualties, it was known that more than 600 officers and men were aboard the cruiser.

Completed in July, 1939, the Southampton was one of the most modern warships afloat. Equipped with heavy long-range guns, a plane-catapault and four-inch armor plate, the vessel was capable of 32 knots.

The Southampton was damaged in Oct., 1939, a month after the start of the war, when Nazi planes bombed the Firth of Forth at Edinburgh, Scotland. The British acknowledged slight damage to the bow.

She was the fourth cruiser to be lost to Britain, which had 64 cruisers when the war began.

TOPS IN AIR SPEED—Important stride in making the United States invincible in the air is this new Vought-Sikorsky XF4U-1 pursuit plane built for the United States Navy. Aviation experts point out its air-cooled motor, its peculiar wing design which reduces the drag on the plane by nearly 50 per cent and its top speed of 400 miles-per-hour plus, making it the fastest fighting craft in the world.

WILHELMSHAVEN CRIPPLED BY RAF

By CHARLES A. SMITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Jan. 16 (INS)—Wilhelmshaven, strong German naval base, was blasted into uselessness and Emden, Bremerhaven, and half a dozen other key Nazi centers were badly damaged during the night as the R.A.F resumed powerful and widespread raids on the continent, the air ministry announced today.

In a record all-night assault—greatest of two score which have pounded the mighty German nest for sea raiders—Wilhelmshaven was so badly crippled that "considerable time will be required before it will be able to resume normal war work" the air ministry asserted.

TONS OF BOMBS DROPPED

Tons of high explosives and hundred of incendiary bombs were poured on the port, while the RAF also blasted an unlisted number of Nazi invasion and bombing centers on the continent.

British airmen struck through bitter cold and dangerous flying weather on 600-mile round trip stabs to make the attack on Wilhelmshaven.

Describing the wide forays, the air ministry declared:

"The naval base at Wilhelmshaven was the main objective of last night's operations by the bomber command.

"The attacks continued throughout the night, and caused extensive fires in the target area.

"Docks at Emden, Bremerhaven, Rotterdam and Flushing also were bombed, as well as aerodromes and other targets in

Maestro's Love Life Near-Riot in Court

Love affairs of Humbert Canzano—Don Humbert, orchestra leader and entertainer in Boston night clubs—precipitated a near riot in the Roxbury district courthouse today.

Canzano filled the role of "he who gets slapped" and took a left and a right to the face from an irate witness—sister of the complainant in an assault and battery case to which Canzano had just pleaded not guilty.

Woman trouble, which hampered his radio and cafe appearances in the past 48 hours, reached its climax when the assault hearing opened before Judge Timothy Ahern.

While Special Officer Leo V. Devlin was explaining the nature of the assault and reporting that the attorney for the complainant, Miss Sonya Arnold, 24, pretty blonde, of Townsend st., Roxbury, was on another case and desired a continuance, Sonya's sister, Dorothy Arnold, 19, of the same address, jumped up from a front row seat and ran to the bench.

"I was present when this happened," she cried. Dorothy screamed to the court that she had been assaulted, too.

TAKEN FROM COURTROOM

Officer Devlin managed to get in the information that the complainant and the defendant had some words and that Miss Arnold alleged Canzano assaulted her on the face.

"Is this girl the complainant?" asked Judge Ahern.

Informed she was not, Judge Ahern ordered:

"You sit down."

The girl did not immediately obey and the judge repeated his order. Court officers then led her to her seat.

That did not quiet her. She began to talk to spectators near by.

"Remove that woman from this courtroom," Judge Ahern instructed Court Officer John H. Duffy.

Order restored, Judge Ahern continued the case to Jan. 24 and released Canzano on his personal recognizance after the defendant had entered a plea of not guilty.

Canzano found no respite when he left the courtroom. There in the corridor Miss Arnold lay in wait. She ran up to Canzano, shook her finger in his face and shouted:

"You made me commit perjury. You'll marry me before you marry that other girl."

The corridor jammed up and Canzano was overheard to say:

"Don't talk so loud."

SLAPPED BY GIRL

Friends and relatives persuaded the girl to go downstairs, but on the outside steps she refused to budge one foot further.

"I'm going to wait for him here," she declared.

All this time Canzano and Miss Celia Isabelle Spiegel, 24, Back Bay, blonde ribbon-salesgirl with whom Canzano tried in vain yesterday to get a waiver of the five-day law after filing intentions to marry, waited indoors for the commotion to subside. They finally made their car.

It was learned then that before coming before Judge Ahern, Canzano sought an audience with Judge Samuel Eisenstadt on the waiver but the judge reported he was busy.

Canzano, who lives in Park drive, and Miss Spiegel, who lives in Queensberry st., both Back Bay, were arrested last Tuesday and arraigned in the Roxbury court on a morals charge. Miss Spiegel's case was filed and Judge Frankland W. L. Miles released Canzano in $1000, continuing his case to Jan. 22.

Yesterday, Canzano and Miss Spiegel had hardly filed intentions at the marriage license bureau when Canzano was arrested on the assault and battery charge by police of Station 9. Then, for a second time, he bailed himself out barely in time to make his afternoon radio appearance.

Boy, 11, Shot In Classroom

FAIRVIEW, N. J., Jan. 16 (AP)—Peter Sgambati, 11, was critically wounded today when a .38-caliber revolver which police Chief Anthony Magrino said the boy was carrying accidentally discharged in a fourth-grade classroom.

Magrino said the boy's parents told him they had taken a number of toy weapons from the boy and that he had borrowed the 20-year-old revolver from his grandfather this morning.

BETTE MEETS UP WITH CACTUS IN AIRPLANE LEAP

DEATH VALLEY, Cal., Jan. 16—OOOPS! Don't sit down there, Miss Bette Davis, not there! DON'T SIT DOW—oh, my goodness. Too late. She sat down.

Well, now, just don't sit down, Miss Bette Davis.

Miss D., the eminent motion picture lady of Lowell, Newton, Sugar Hill, N. H., Hollywood, etc., was making a picture scene here where she was supposed to jump out of a plane, allegedly piloted by Jimmy Cagney, after it had made a forced landing.

Miss Davis was supposed to open the plane door, jump, and land in the sand.

Don't sit down, Miss Bette Davis.

OUCH—Bette Davis (Mrs. Arthur Farnsworth) was pretty sore today . . . the result of jumping, accidentally, into a cactus patch during the filming of a movie scene. Forty-five cactus thistles were removed from her body.

4 of Widow's 5 Sons in Service

METHUEN, Jan. 16 (AP)—The draft did not affect any of the Widow Bridget Donahue's five sons. Already members of the National Guard, four of them—Sergt. Cornelius, 24, and Pvts. William, 23; Patrick, 18, and John, 29, left home today for induction into federal service with the 26th Division.

"I'M GOING TO LOSE 20 POUNDS"

By MARY X. SULLIVAN

FOURTH DAY OF SLIMMING SAGA:

I don't know whether it was losing a pound, or the cold fact that this is going to appear in print, but after I had been pummelled to a pulp (or so it felt) yesterday, I felt a wave of will power sweeping over me.

"I am definitely going to lose at least another pound by tomorrow. I'm going to refuse all offers of cocktails with press agents. Moreover, I'm not going to take a taxi to Beacon Hill tonight. I shall walk home."

And I did. I had rushed to the gym without my breakfast . . . oh, I should have told my readers that I have the juice of half a lemon in warm water every morning on arising. That's in my schedule.

COULD EAT COP

After my hour and a half of exercise, sweating and massage, I could have eaten the traffic cop on the corner, but for the fact that he was fat and hence taboo. Besides, he's probably a family man.

I popped into a drug store and had a large orange juice, a boiled egg, one slice of buttered toast and coffee. Since it was 11:30, I figured that would hold me until dinner.

At 5:30 I was definitely hungry, so I went across the street and had a lovely steak, with spinach and fresh green peas and a lettuce and tomato salad. I was persuaded by the waitress (an economical soul who hates to see you pay for dessert and not eat it) to have a baked apple.

When I finished my daily stint, I walked home through the Common, not strolling but popping along as if I were late for an appoint-

'Stay Out of War' Air Talk Saturday By Joe Kennedy

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (INS)—Leaving the White House after a conference with President Roosevelt, Joseph P. Kennedy, former ambassador to Great Britain, told reporters he would make a radio speech Saturday night that "will have an accent on staying out of war."

Asked if he had discussed with the President the subject of his speech, Kennedy answered: "Why don't you ask Mr. Roosevelt about that?"

When reporters questioned the former ambassador on the subject of his radio talk, he replied: "Wait until Saturday night. For once, I am going to say what I have on my mind myself."

Finn of Night Club Pays Alimony, Freed

Sentenced to 20 days in jail for contempt of court in failing to make three weekly alimony payments totalling $45, Walter H. Finn, Back Bay night club manager, won his freedom today by borrowing the money, in $1 bills, from a friend. The contempt finding was by Judge John V. Mahoney in Suffolk Probate Court.

The payments were due Mrs. Rosalind Barbacco Finn, former wife of the defendant. She lives in Beacon st., Brookline.

Today's contempt sentence was the second for Finn for non-payment of alimony. Last time, he was committed to Charles st. jail, but raised the overdue money there.

10,000 YD MEN INDUCTED INTO U. S. ARMY

EVENING AMERICAN, THURSDAY, JANUARY 16, 1941

Into the United States Army today, 10,000 Massachusetts men were inducted at 50 armories throughout the Commonwealth.

For at least a year the 26th Division of the Massachusetts National Guard will be in federal training as part of the Sixth Army Corps, whose general headquarters will be at Providence.

What lay ahead for the old guardsmen of the YD as they donned the Army uniforms they must wear through the 12 months was hardly mentioned beyond announcement that the entire division will be moved into Camp Edwards at Falmouth within two weeks.

Physical examinations for every member and the enormous task of dispatching men and equipment to the camp will occupy the neyt 12 days at least.

CORP. KENNETH WILSON
Fills Out Induction Form

TEN SURGEON BOARDS

Preliminary medical examinations have been given all officers of the division and they will submit to final scrutiny before they go to camp.

Ten boards of army surgeons have begun their work of passing the guardsmen into federal service at ormories in Greater Boston, in Worcester, Springfield, Salem, Lawrence and New Bedford.

No additional oath or other ceremonies are required from men already sworn to the service of the Commonwealth, and the only semblance of a ceremony was at division headquarters, Commonwealth ave., Back Bay.

Here Maj.-Gen. Roger W. Eckfeldt, the YD's commander, with the division staff and administrative staff, were sworn in by Col. Lloyd A. Kefauver of the Army Medical Corps, stationed at the Army Base.

First-Lieut. Carl J. Gilbert, aide to Gen. Eckfeldt, was sworn in with the division staff, including Lieut.-Cols. George L. Goodridge, chief of staff; Charles H. Moore, assistant chief of staff, G-1; Earle W. Lancaster, assistant chief of staff, G-2; Wallace A. Choquette, assistant chief of staff, G-3; and William H. Hennessey, assistant chief of staff, G-4; and Maj. Napoleon J. Vigeant, assistant in G-3.

The administrative staff sworn were Lieuts.-Col. Vincent H. Jacobs, division adjutant; Elijah Adlow, judge advocate; Louis E. Boutwell, division air officer; Charles I. Boynton, finance officer; Daniel J. Lynch and Abbot Peterson, division chaplains; Ralph T. Hilton, signal officer, and Frank E. Mitchell, division inspector; Maj. Joseph A. Bonneau, ordnance officer; Capt. Thomas L. Buckley, assistant division adjutant, and 2d Lieut. Daniel A. O'Brien, postal officer.

ECKFELDT'S STATEMENT

Following the brief ceremony, Gen. Eckfeldt issued the following statement:

"The 26th Division is glad to respond to the order of the President for duty as a component of the army of the United States.

"We know that the year of training will be benificial to all, and no matter what the division is called upon to do in the future, I am confident it will acquit itself with credit to the old Yankee Division, the National Guard, of which it was a part, and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts."

Meanwhile the regimental men were falling in at various armories throughout the state and some were drilling.

Drilling also were new recruits—the awkward squads—responding to the drive to bring volunteers into the outfit.

AWKWARD SQUAD DRILLS

There was one such awkward squad at Commonwealth Armory in Allston, and here the changing order of warfare was in evidence.

This has long been a cavalry armory and there is a dirt and gravel and tanbark floor. But today there were no horses in evidence as the recruits drilled in civilian clothes—only army trucks and other motorized equipment in neat serried ranks around the long, high walls.

It was chilly in the armory and most of the awkward squad kept on overcoats as they responded to the barkings of the drill sergeant, not without a bit of confusion over the orders now and then.

Because there are no army kitchens available in this period of transition between National Guard life and the settling down at Camp Edwards, the men are being allowed $1.25 a day for rations.

All commissioned officers are on their own in the matter of eating, but the rank and file, through non-commissioned-officer ratings, have the eating allowance, which is approximately three times the cost of feeding one man one day on the Army books.

The men are not given the $1.25 in cash for each day, but arrangements have been made with restaurants near armories to feed a man up to $1.25 a day, and then bill the Army.

Until they are actually sent to Camp Edwards, some of the men will sleep in the armories, but others, living nearby, will be allowed to go home nights.

Service units—the men who pave the way—will be first dispatched to the camp.

The 101st Quartermaster Regiment, the military police company and the individual service companies of the combat units will start the fires, install the food and bedding and generally get the approximately 1300 buildings ready for YD occupancy.

Then will come the soldiers in an increasing stream. Saturday the first service companies arrive. Tuesday the division headquarters moves into camp with advance detachments of the 101st Medical Regiment and 101st Engineers, and by Jan. 28 some 10,000 men of the division will be living in the soldier city.

No Foreign War Group Repudiated by Lindy

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 (INS)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today disavowed any connection with the No-Foreign-War committee headed by Verne Marshall, crusading Iowa editor.

Lindbergh's repudiation of the committee was made in a formal statement distributed to newspaper offices and news agencies in New York city. His statement follows:

"I wish to state that while I have attempted to co-operate with all American organizations opposed to our entering the war in Europe, I have no connection with the No-Foreign-War committee.

"Shortly after the No-Foreign-War campaign was launched in Washington I agreed to speak at an open meeting in St. Louis, providing certain conditions were met. These conditions were not met, and since that time the No-Foreign-War campaign has undergone reorganization.

"I attended a number of conferences when its successor, the No-Foreign-War committee, was being formed, but found myself unable to support the methods and policies adopted by the new organization.

"I have at no time been a member of the committee, nor have I contributed to its financial support.

"My belief that it would be disastrous for this country to enter the war remains unchanged, and I intend to continue the stand I have taken against our participation."

Several other persons also were brought out alive.

U. S. Denied Right to Poll N. Y. Dairymen

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP)—Associate Justice Jennings Bailey issued an injunction in Federal District Court today restraining Sec. of Agriculture Wickard from conducting a referendum "in its present form" among 60,000 dairymen in the New York milkshed next week.

The order also restrained the secretary from suspending the federal milk program there without first finding it no longer effectuated the policy of the marketing agreements act.

Baby, Shot by Father, Not Epected to Live

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16 (AP)—A 16-months old girl, shot while she lay in her carriage on a crowded street, was given only a slight chance for recovery today and police charged her father with aggravated assault and battery with firearms. The child was shot as the father met his estranged wife and a violent quarrel followed.

Charles Braun, 32, accompanied by his attorney, surrendered last night about five hours after his infant daughter, Joan, had been critically wounded.

National Income May Cover Defense Cost

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP)—The nation's vast defense program could be financed without increasing the public debt, a Brookings Institution report declared, if national income averages $85,000,000,000 annually for the next three years and if appropriate taxes are levied.

Quebec Legislator Perishes in Blaze

HUNTINGDON, Que., Jan. 16 (AP)—James W. Ross, 55, Liberal member of the Quebec Legislative Assembly, burned to death today in a fire which destroyed his home at Powerscourt, eight miles from Huntingdon.

'Hot Undies' Defy Arctic Cold in Flight of Bomber

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Jan. 16 (AP)—The captain and his crew flew toward the North Pole yesterday in nothing but their underwear, and were cozy and comfortable, thank you.

It was a test of the latest in Arctic clothing for U. S. Army fliers at the experimental northern flying station here: "Electric underwear."

Clad only in the new garments—except for head, hands and feet—Maj. Dale V. Gaffney, Ladd Field commander, and his crew flew a four-motored Boeing bomber 1500 miles through the Arctic's sub-zero air lanes without a shiver or a short-circuit. The flight took them close to 300 miles north of the Arctic Circle, to Point Barrow and Point Hope on the circular course.

The purpose of the 7½-hour flight, at a 200-mile-an-hour average, was to test the new "hot undies." The airmen also carried zipper-equipped jumper garments for use in case of emergency. They wore felt and leather gloves, also wired.

The heat in the electric undies is provided by coils interwoven in the garments. The wearer plugs into the circuit beside his seat. Recent test flights have been at 4000 to 10,000 feet elevation, where the temperature normally runs between 20 and 30 below zero.

F. D. Daughter Here To See John's Baby

Mr. and Mrs. John Boettiger of Seattle, Wash., son-in-law and daughter of President Roosevelt, paid a visit to Boston today—particularly at John Roosevelt's, 512 Beacon st.

"To see the new baby," they said in one breath at the apartment this morning.

The new baby is 7-month-old Haven Roosevelt.

On their way to Monday's inaugural in Washington, they arrived in Boston this morning from a three-day stay in New York, following a visit to Hyde Park last Sunday.

"The baby's simply fine," said Mrs. Boettiger. "And I wanted to stop, too, to see John. I aven't seen him for a year."

On the way to a taxi, Mr. Boettiger, publisher of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, explained that he had stopped at Chicago, Rochester and other places coming East "on business calls, in behalf of the paper."

Mrs. Boettiger, answering an inquiring glance, anticipated a question and hastened to say:

"I'm just chief cook and bottle washer."

Glancing outdoors, she added:

"I've been freezing."

By the modest disclaimer that she was "chief cook and bottle-washer," Mrs. Boettiger did not fully describe how she shares with her husband the active management of the Seattle newspaper.

"My end is matters of interest to women," she explained. "The national defense movement has brought up a number of problems in that line.

"Take the Bremerton Navy Yard across the bay from Seattle. By next fall there will be 2500 children there in families of officers and men ordered on duty, and not a schoolhouse within miles."

"I imagine the west coast and the east coast are in about the same situation on national defense," Mr. Boettiger added. Both have concentrations of industrial plants and hot hare keenly aware of war possibilities.

"Of course on the west coast wedirect our thoughts more to the Orient and here you think about danger from Europe."

Four shipyards on Puget Sound, idle since the World War, have suddenly sprung to full speed in a $350,000,000 program, Mr. Boettiger said. Two shipyards in Seattle and the big Boeing aircraft factory have brought problems in housing, schools and traffic, he explained.

Mrs. Boettiger has all the poise and animation of her mother. Very fair, she has golden hair, bobbed, and clear blue eyes. Beneath her street coat she wore a black wool skirt and scarlet wool blouse with embroidery of jet and gold around the throat.

The Boettigers plan to leave tonight for Philadelphia, go to New York tomorrow night and reach Washington Sunday.

At the Boston offices of the Boston Evening American-Daily Record and Sunday Advertiser, Boettiger also conferred with Leslie Barnard, New England manager of the Rodney E. Boone Organization, national advertising representatives.

Second Arrest Bares Peace Racket Ring

NEW BEDFORD, Jan. 16—Arrest of a second man revealed today that a ring of possibly eight men allegedly obtained thousands of dollars from two elderly New Bedford sisters under representation that the money was for furthering a peace movement.

Following the failure of James J. Mullaney, 47, of Boston and Lowell, to answer a larceny complaint, Franklin B. Bowers of Brookline and Wellfleet appeared in court today and pleaded not guilty to charges of larceny involving $2000.

According to Asst. Dist. Atty. Edward J. Harrington, these two men are believed members of a ring responsible for mulcting Mary B. and Helen Seabury of New Bedford, peace advocates who are nationally known for prizes they have offered school children for essays.

Mullaney, whose bail of $3000 was ordered forfeited when he failed to appear for arraignment—his counsel pleading that Mullaney was ill—is charged with the larceny of "more than $100" from Mary Seabury.

Bowers is charged with larceny from both sisters.

Harrington said investigation into the case was begun after a business associate of the sisters reported seeing cancelled checks aggregating several thousand dollars returned to them.

R. I. Governor Averts Strike

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 16—Less than four hours before employes of the Narragansett Electric Co. were scheduled to strike here today, cutting off light and power from an estimated 500,000 persons and from industrial plants, Gov. J. Howard McGrath announced that the union and management had agreed to arbitrate.

The company provides electricity to Providence and all central and southern Rhode Island except Newport County. Deadline for the strike had been set at 7 a. m.

Mayor Dennis J. Roberts of this city had told company officials, union leaders and conciliators that he was "determined to protect the right of the people of Providence to have use of a vital service."

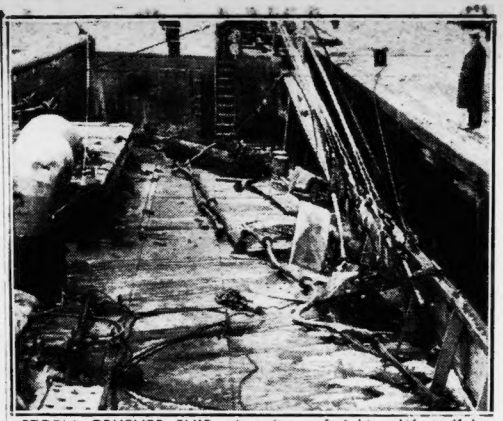
Rising from a sickbed, he had made plans with city department heads, electric company representatives and telephone officials to protect the city in case the strike were called.

Later, opposing sides and conciliators accepted Gov. McGrath's invitation to meet with him in the State House.

Michigan Auto Strike Plants Are Reopened

DETROIT, Jan. 16 (AP)—Four plants of the Eaton Manufacturing Co., closed for two days by sympathy strikes called by the United Automobile Workers (CIO), reported today, but the interunion dispute which occasioned the walkout still appeared unsolved.

At the Saginaw, Mich., plant, scene of the original dispute, leaders of the United Automobile Workers (AFL) said they had "not been consulted" on the settlement demanded by James F. Dewey, federal conciliator, in the interest of national defense.



STORM CRUSHES SHIP—American freighter West Kebar docks in Boston today . . . badly damaged by a storm 600 miles southeast of Cape Cod, which ripped decks, crippled into kindling a motorboat (right, rear) and threatened to sink the vessel. A tanker, answering SOS calls, helped the ship to port.

Face Draft Call If They Strike

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 16 (AP)—Draft officials were informed today that in the event of a walkout at Ryan Aeronautical Co. plant here, strikers eligible for selective service would be subject to reclassification.

Lieut.-Col. Maurice Sparling, U. S. N. R., liaison officer attached to state draft headquarters, told local boards that workers placed in r. deferred class because of their employment in the airplane factory would not be entitled to retain that status should they walk out.

Meanwhile, Harry C. Malcolm, federal conciliator, said the company and the CIO United Automobile Workers' Union were deadlocked, 5½ cents apart on what the minimum wage scale should be at the plant.

Watch Family Now While Epidemic Colds Are Spreading

At a treacherous time like this, with an epidemic of contagious colds all around you, what you do today may save you and your family a lot of sickness, worry and trouble later.

Follow these simple rules of health: Live normally. Avoid excesses. Eat simple food. Drink plenty of water. Keep elimination regular. Take some exercise daily—preferably outdoors. Get plenty of rest and sleep.

Then use these two time-tested treatments when needed.

AT THE FIRST SNIFFLE, SNEEZE OR NASAL IRRITATION... put a few drops of Vicks Va-tro-nol up each nostril. This helps to prevent many colds from developing, because Va-tro-nol is expressly designed to help Nature's own defenses against colds. (If a head cold causes stuffiness, you'll find that a few drops of Va-tro-nol helps clear the clogging mucus and makes breathing freer and easier.)

IF A CHEST COLD OR COUGHING COLD DEVELOPS (some colds get by all precautions) use Vicks VapoRub to relieve miseries. Rub VapoRub on throat, chest and back and cover with a warmed cloth. VapoRub acts to bring relief 2 ways at once. It stimulates surface of chest and back like a poultice. At the same time it releases helpful medicinal vapors that are breathed direct into the irritated air passages.

Both Va-tro-nol and VapoRub have been tested through years of use in millions of homes. When you use these two medicines you are not experimenting, you are not taking needless chances. Remember: If the condition of the cold fails to respond quickly to treatment—or if more serious trouble is indicated—call your family physician right away. In the meantime be prepared! Get a bottle of Vicks Va-tro-nol and a jar of Vicks VapoRub today—have them handy, ready to use.

Pianist, Wife Saved Over Ladder in Fire

A 43-year-old Boston concert pianist and his wife had Boston firemen to thank for their lives today.

The couple were rescued from their fourth-floor apartment in an exclusive Beacon st., Back Bay dwelling house during a fire that drove 12 other persons, including three young nurses, to the frigid streets.

Raymond Havens and his wife were taken down over fire ladders when Capt. James J. Kelleher of Ladder 15 saw them standing in a smoke-filled window, screaming for help.

TAKING BATH

Havens, who had been taking a bath when the fire broke out, was in pajamas and a bathrobe. His 31-year-old wife wore slacks. Laddermen Raymond Frazel, Claude Greggs, Andrew Nelson and William McKernon carried the two down.

Hundreds of persons watched the dramatic rescue as traffic along Beacon st. was completely tied up.

Firemen said the blaze, that did an estimated $3500 damage, started in the second floor apartment of Mrs. Helen Towne. Mrs. Towne was standing in the hallway talking to Alexander Smith, 21, a Massachusetts Institute of Technology student, when she saw smoke pouring from her door.

Smith roused his roommate, Andrew Hillhouse, 20, another M. I. T. student, while Mrs. Towne ran upstairs to warn the Havens and Mrs. Irving Morse, fourth floor occupants.

HAIR SINGED

On her way downstairs with Mrs. Morse, Mrs. Towne's hair was singed. Her husband, Winfield, was not at home at the time of the fire.

Three nurses, Misses Rae Egan, Mildred Anderson and Olga Basamania were driven from their apartment with three young men who were to have eaten dinner with them.

Mrs. Town said several valuable paintings in her apartment were damaged in the blaze.

RESCUED—Trapped in their third floor apartment during fire which swept a four-story Beacon Hill building, Mrs. Raymond Havens (above) and her husband were carried down ladder to safety. Twelve others were routed by the flames.

Blaze Menaces Home in Newton

Quick action by the Newton fire department saved five persons, including a 3-year-old child, from being driven from their home into the cold today when a roof blaze menaced a dwelling in Parker st., Newton Center.

Aroused by police were Mr. and Mrs. Raymond M. Knight, a daughter, Miriam, 3; a son, Raymond, Jr., 10, and a roomer, Ronald Berrebe, 19.

The fire, believed to have started from a defective chimney, was extinguished without serious damage.

Hisses, boos, and police threats to shut off a nation-wide radio broadcast still reverberated today as highlights of the Verne Marshall-Mayo Shattuck debate on the New England Town Hall radio program last night.

Marshall, chairman of the No Foreign Wars Committee, and Shattuck, New England vice-chairman of the Committee to Defend America, were debating the extent of aid to be accorded England.

Marshall declared that by sending supplies to Britain the United States admits that 130,000,000 people are incapable of giving their nation the protection afforded it by 5,000,000 Americans 150 years ago.

He sharply criticized Asst. Sec. of State Berle for failing to turn over to President Roosevelt a German peace proposal brought to the United States by William R. Davis in November, 1939.

Shattuck said Hitler will have no place to turn for food but to this country and South America if he defeats Britain.

"Necessity makes for an inevitable collision between us (and Hitler)," he said.

The crowd booed and hissed Shattuck throughout, and a squad of police circulated among the audience.

REPORTER TELLS OF RAID ON CARRIER

By LARRY ALLEN

ABOARD AIRCRAFT CARRIER ILLUSTRIOUS, WITH BRITISH MEDITERRANEAN FLEET, Jan. 16 (AP)—Battered but still able to move under her own power, the Aircraft Carrier Illustrious has reached the comparative safety of a Mediterranean port after weathering one of the most punishing attacks a British warship has undergone in this war.

Editor's note—Larry Allen, Associated Press correspondent aboard the British aircraft carrier Illustrious Jan. 10 when Nazi dive bombers attacked her, has been an eye-witness of most of the actions fought by the British fleet in the Mediterranean. Allen went to Europe in 1938 to cover the Spanish Civil War for the Associated Press.

For seven hours on Jan. 10, German dive bombers rained explosives on her in an attempt to send her to the bottom as she plowed through the central Mediterranean with other fleet units escorting a big eastbound convoy.

Between 40 and 50 Nazi planes participated in the attack, diving low to release 1000-pound bombs whose concussion shook the 23,000-ton vessel as a cat shakes a rat.

In all, 100,000 pounds of high explosive bombs were aimed at her flight deck and many torpedoes at her sides.

STOOD ON BRIDGE

I witnessed the first part of the attack from the bridge, where part of the time I was flat on my face, my hands folded across my head, while splinters of steel swept the the carrier's decks and the "thump, thump" of anti-aircraft guns mingled with the spine-chilling scream of the dive bombers and the crash of bursting bombs.

The second time the Germans came over, a low-flying Stuka dropped a bomb which exploded near the starboard side of the ship. The blast threw a column of water over the bridge and hurled me down a hatchway to aviation intelligence quarters one deck below. A sheet of fire burned my face.

Throughout the assault the carrier's pom-pom guns kept up a continuous fire, putting up a wall of fire through which the Nazis dived head-on.

12 PLANES DOWNED

A flight of British planes which succeeded in taking off from the Illustrious before the Germans struck also made the Nazis pay. The final score in German planes shot down was 12.

DNB, the German official news agency, said the Illustrious suffered extensive damage to her port side and claimed it would be a long time before she could be put into service again. The British previously had announced in London that the Illustrious, the 9100-ton cruiser Southampton and the 1335-ton destroyer Gallant had been damaged.—Editor's Note.

The attack on the Illustrious came after a British cruiser attached to the convoy sank one of Italy's newest destroyers, the 642-ton Vega, and damaged another.

I had a ringside seat for this engagement, during which the British cruiser also engaged Italian shore batteries (presumably on the Sicilian coast).

OPENS BATTLE

The cruiser opened the battle when she sighted the two destroyers dead ahead. A shell from the British vessel set one of the destroyers afire, and she moved off at top speed, losing herself in the mist along the coast as the cruiser engaged her mate.

The latter, the Vega, exchanged shell for shell with the cruiser until her magazine suffered a direct hit. A saw a great mass of flame shoot up from the Vega, and she slipped swiftly beneath the waves with her entire crew of 94 men.

British naval units continued to fire at the Italian shore batteries, which fell silent after the Vega sank. A British plane dropped bombs on the other fleeing destroyer and British expressed a belief possibly she sank or was beached somewhere along Pantelleria island.

As the convoy continued its eastward journey after the naval battle, I was in the wardroom of the Illustrious, just sitting down to lunch, when a marine bugler sounded a warning and the loudspeakers beamed:

"All hands to action stations."

BOMB STRIKES

I had barely reached the bridge when a big bomb struck the ship with a shattering blast, and a moment later another 1000-pounder crashed alongside. A blinding flash seemed to envelop the whole ship.

Another bomb tore holes in the carrier's sides. Still another burst close alongside, the fragments striking members of an anti-aircraft gun crew.

The din was hellish as every gun on the Illustrious roared at the Germans, but they continued to come, raking the decks with machine-gun fire even as they loosed their bombs.

Several torpedoes narrowly missed the carrier.

Battleships, cruisers and destroyers were being attacked simultaneously. Great spouts of water sometimes hid the other vessels from sight.

Both officers and men of the Illustrious risked machine-gun fire to cross the decks to rescue wounded comrades and carry them below to medical stations.

DRIVE NAZIS OFF

The few fighter planes which the carrier was able to get into action before the first bombs struck drove the Germans off temporarily and gave the only respite until darkness fell. Less than an hour after the first assault the Nazis returned, and once more hell broke loose.

Bombs fell all about the ship, rocking her so that at times it appeared she was about to turn over. Between 2 and 7:30 p. m. there never were more than a few minutes at a time free of the crash of bursting bombs and the thunder of gunfire.

Throughout the afternoon Rear Admiral A. L. St. George Lyster stood on the bridge with bomb splinters and machine-gun bullets splattering around him, giving orders to his aides.

So low did some of the big German bombers come that every detail of their markings was clearly visible to those aboard the Illustrious. One officer said later:

Big Carrier Torpedoed, Rome Says

ROME, Jan. 16 (AP)—The Axis' report of its bomb and torpedo offensive against British seapower in the Mediterranean—a total claim of damage or destruction of 78 "enemy" vessels—was further filled today by the assertion of a Rome newspaper that the 22,600-ton aircraft carrier Eagle had been torpedoed.

At the same time the high command acknowledged a new night attack by British warplanes on Catania, Sicily (supposed to be the main base for the German Stuka dive-bombers now co-operating with the Italian air force.) The damage was minor, the high command communique said, and "a few" persons were killed or injured.

Il Giornale d'Italia, reporting the attack on the Eagle, a converted battleship, claimed only that a wave-skimming Italian torpedo plane had scored a hit on the ship recently between Tobruk, Libya, and the Greek island of Crete.

Virginio Gayda confirmed reports from the British side that the 642-ton torpedo boat Vega was sunk Jan. 11.

PALE, TIRED WOMEN

Enrich Your Blood & Nerves With Iron and Vitamin B¹

Thousands of women and girls over 14 are not getting enough iron to make rich red blood, and not enough Vitamin B¹ for proper functioning of the nerves. When the iron lost each month is not replaced, these women often feel tired, cold, worn out. They have pale lips and pale cheeks.

Their shortage of Vitamin B¹ affects the nerves, dulls the appetite, and disturbs digestion. These women should try ENRICH, the tasty new preparation which supplies abundant iron and Vitamin B¹. No habit-forming drugs, no alcohol. Each day's quota of ENRICH supplies more iron for the blood than 4 pounds of beefsteak or 7 pounds of spinach. ENRICH also supplies more Vitamin B¹ than ¾ pound of baker's yeast. Best of all, ENRICH tastes good and costs only a few cents daily.

When iron is restored to the blood and the body is fully supplied with Vitamin B¹, it usually follows that good color comes back to the cheeks and lips, appetite returns, nerves function better, and you feel peppy again.

We will refund your money unless one bottle of ENRICH helps you feel better, look better, eat better, and sleep better. Start now!

TOBRUK DRIVE IS NEAR

WITH BRITISH FORCES IN LIBYA, Jan. 16 (AP)—British soldiers breathing sniff-free air for the first time in a week, are redoubling their efforts in preparation for the assault on the beleaguered Italian stronghold of Tobruk.

The ring of guns surrounding the town has been closing steadily despite seven days of heavy sandstorms, but the withering fire such as smothered out Bardia just before it fell has not begun, and soldiers welcomed the respite from the swirling sand to hasten the movement of equipment for the new attack.

The Fascists have at least one big naval gun planted ashore, as at Bardia. The British troops have named it "Tobruk Tom" and are trying hard to silence it.

"The harbor at Brest, France, again was attacked by forces of the coastal command.

"One of our aircraft is missing."

In Nazi raids on England last night towns on the east coast, the Midlands and London were bombed. At least five babies were killed in one of the Midland towns.

The raid on London, began shortly before midnight, much later than usual. A considerable number of fire bombs were dropped but the flames were quickly controlled.

20 Killed, 35 Hurt At Wilhelmshaven

BERLIN, Jan. 16 (AP)—Twenty persons were killed and 35 injured and several houses set afire in a British air raid last night on the major naval port of Wilhelmshaven, the German high command announced today.

The daily communique said, however, that, although "several incendiary bombs flamed in the harbor section," they caused no "noteworthy damage" and that spread into the house fires was "prevented by the efficiency of air raid precautions and self-protection squads."

The attack on Wilhelmshaven was one of several carried out on places in northern Germany, the communique declared.

It reported a "rolling raid" last night on war essential objectives in a central England city, lesser attacks on London and a raid on Dover in which several direct hits were scored on the railway station.

The Luftwaffe "bombed a troop camp and another objective in southern England" in daylight raids yesterday and continued its mining of British harbors, the high command said.

London to Remove Children Under 14 "Likely to Suffer"

400 New Ships For Navy O. K.'d

WASHINGTON, Jan 16 (AP)—The House naval committee gave unanimous approval to an urgent Navy request for authority to spend $909,000,000 for 400 relatively small new ships and for a vast expansion of shipbuilding and ordnance plants.

The action brought to $1,200,000,000 the naval outlays which the committee has recommended in less than 24 hours. Approved yesterday was a $300,000,000 program for strengthening the fleet's defenses against dive bombers and other aerial attacks.

The 400 new ships, to cost approximately $465,000,000, would consist chiefly of sub chasers, seagoing escort vessels, mine sweepers and torpedo boats.

HENRY — Practice Makes Perfect

FBI TABS HAWAIIAN JAPS IN SABOTAGE PRECAUTION

(For out in the blue Pacific lies Hawaii, a tropical paradise. But Hawaii is more than a paradise now. It is a fortress upon which may rest the welfare of the United States. In Washington, the situation in the Pacific is watched with concern. The following article is the fourth in a series comprising a frank exposition of the military situation in Hawaii.)

By RICHARD HALLER
International News Service Special Correspondent

HONOLULU, Jan. 16—Army and Navy authorities and the FBI are conducting an exhaustive study of the attitudes of all Japanese people living in the Hawaiian Islands to determine possibility of any subversive activity in event of war between the United States and Japan.

The study has been under way for at least six months and will be continued indefinitely. It includes thorough translations of every Japanese newspaper published and every Japanese radio broadcast made, careful scrutiny of all meetings of Japanese organizations and even a watchful eye on the private schools in which Japanese children learn the language of their parents and the customs of their people.

NEW PROBLEM

War with Japan would present an unparalleled problem in Hawaii because 37 per cent of the total population of the islands is Japanese. Exact census figures on racial groups are not yet available, but there are slightly more than 425,000 persons living in Hawaii now.

Over 155,000 of these are Japanese, the largest single racial group and exceeding even the Caucasians who number 108,000.

Other groups are: Pure Hawaiians, 21,000; part Hawaiians, 45,000; Puerto Ricans, 8000; Chinese, 29,000; Koreans, 7000; Filipinos 52,000

No alarm is felt that the Japanese bloc of 157,000 would array itself solidly with Japan. That is improbable; also impossible. A rigid sytem of firearms control in effect for years has prevented any arming

Japanese are dependent upon regular community sources of food supply. Only about 25,000 of the total were born in Japan; the rest are Hawaii born and about evenly divided between second and third generation

MOST AMERICANIZED

The majority of those born within the territory are thoroughly Americanized, educated in American schools, living in American-style homes and according to American customs; this latter even to the smaller families.

This majority as a group has no wish to exchange comfortable American standards of living for what they would have to accept under a Japanese regime.

The older Japanese are of course sympathetic to the land of their birth, the more affluent send their children to be educated in Japan; nearly all contribute to the Japanese language schools to imbue them with Japanese customs and culture, but it is an uphill job and the Americanization process is advancing.

When a Japanese admiral visiting in Honolulu a year or more ago quietly passed the word out that the imperial government in Toyko wished Japanese owning property in the islands to liquidate it and reinvest in land in Manchukuo or North China, there was not a single taker. Apparently the Japanese preferred to hold on to what they have in Hawaii.

But it is not the mass Japanese population that worries American authorities. It is the individual who might be a spy, the small subversive group which might agitate or the potential saboteur.

One person could perpetrate serious damage. For that reason Army, Navy and FBI are exerting extreme vigilance. They are not alarmed; they only want to know where trouble might originate and be ready for it.

Should war come and martial law be declared within the islands plans are ready for weeding out the doubtful cases and putting them in safe keeping.

Sites and equipment have been prepared for concentration camps and arrangements for regimentation and surveillance completed.

In event of war handling the Japanese situation in Hawaii would be a big job, but every detail has been worked out and Army, Navy and FBI are ready for it.

The fifth article in this series will be printed in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

Greeks Seize New Positions

ATHENS, Jan. 16 (AP)—Surprise infantry attacks were reported today to have enabled Greek fighters to occupy important mountain heights in the central Albanian battlefront despite severe snowstorms followed by a heavy rain.

Greek spokesmen said their troops "continued their victorious advance" by seizing positions which improved their lines north of Klisura.

Intensive artillery fire along most of the front went on despite the snow and rain, it was reported. Aside from the surprise attacks on the central sector, spokesmen said, infantry action was limited to mopping up operations against isolated Italian units and to collecting and sorting Fascist war materials taken in the past week.

Two Italian counter-attacks were repulsed, a Greek authority asserted, in the localized central front fighting.

This is another in the series of letters from residents of war-torn Britain to friends and relatives in Greater Boston.

From: Phyllis Wheatley,
3 Beaconsfield rd., Aylesbury,
Buckinghamshire, England.

To: Mrs. Lilyan R. Murphy,
322 Washington st.,
Dorchester, Mass.

Dear Lilyan,

I was very pleased to receive a letter from you, also the papers, which were very interesting. I must thank you very much for both. I expect there isn't much I can tell you about things over here, as you get first hand news.

We are all well here, trying to keep cheerful and happy, and not letting things get us down. Our town isn't a very important place so therefore except for a few stray bombs around us we must not complain, but think of others who are much worse off, and pray for victory.

I don't know how Eileen is, as she has not answered my last letter which I wrote quite two months ago.

I expect you get plenty of news from your aunt and friends in Cornwall. I often wonder how they all are down there.

I am afraid I am not getting anywhere much these days. All our boys are away, and nowadays these towns are full of men in uniforms—here today and gone tomorrow. There doesn't seem to be much prospect of better things. I mean settling down, which I would dearly love to do.

I would love to come to America. It's something I have always wanted to do. I think I shall have to be evacuated with the kids. How about putting me up?

BROTHER IN ARMY

My brother has now been in the Army ten weeks. We are hoping he will get leave soon, as we miss him so. He does write cheerful letters, and never has a complaint.

I do hope I am not too late to wish you a very Happy Christmas, and a much happier New Year. I'm afraid I haven't any interesting news to tell you from here. The main topic of the day seems to be the war. No one really talks about much else, so I think I had better stop, as I might make my letter sound depressing to you. So cheerio for the time, Lilyan.

Your friend ever,
PHYLLIS.

Selassie Summons Troops by Tom-Tom

ON THE ETHIOPIAN-SUDANESE FRONTIER, Jan. 16 (AP)—The rhythmic tom-tom of 44 royal war drums has broken the desolate silence of this desert area with a summons to Ethiopian patriots to rise in arms against their Italian masters.

From peak to peak the thumping carried the message from former Emperor Haille Selassie and hundreds of Ethiopians slipped across the border to join their comrades

Axis Sicilian Base Bombed

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 16 (AP)—Between 30 and 40 aircraft were either burned or severely damaged in a British raid on Catania airdrome, Sicily, on Sunday night, Royal Air Force headquarters said today.

Catania is believed to be the base from which the German dive bombers operated when they attacked a British naval unit escorting merchant vessels to Greece last Friday.

A communique said one hangar on the airdrome was wrecked, another badly damaged adn a third hit. Photographic reconnaissance many bomb craters on the airdrome field, the communique added.

Bengasi, Libya, some 200 miles west of besieged Tobruk, where the Italians are believed to be shaping up new lines of resistance, was raided by British airmen on the nights of Jan. 13, 14 and 15, the communique reported.

Rome Admits Bombing, Says Damage Slight

ROME, Jan. 16 (AP)—British warplanes bombed Catania, Sicily, last night, causing minor damage and killing and injuring "a few persons," the Italian high command announced today.

At the same time the Italians credited two of their submarines with torpedoing a British light cruiser in the Mediterranean and sinking a British merchant ship in the Atlantic.

Stimson Fears U. S. Air Attack If Britain Is Beaten

IN RANGE OF N. E.

Asked by Fish what bases he had in mind, Stimson said:

"Newfoundland would be a base within easy range of all of our New England coast. North Canada would be within easy range of the New England coast."

"Does the secretary believe," Fish continued, "that our Navy would remain locked up in our harbors if any such invasion were attempted?"

"No," said Stimson, "but where is our Navy now?" (Most of the big ships of the Navy are presently based in the Pacific.)

Fish then inquired whether there was "fear of invasion," and the secretary replied that there was danger of an air invasion if the British fleet were destroyed or otherwise rendered ineffective for this country's protection.

Stimson took the stand today after Treasury Sec. Morgenthau declared yesterday that England's war orders here have virtually been halted by a lack of ready cash.

Meanwhile, it was learned that Joseph P. Kennedy, retiring ambassador to London, would testify before the committee Tuesday. Kennedy was an early morning visitor at both the White House and State Department today.

Opponents of the lease-lend bill have claimed he would support their view; supporters, however, have questioned that he would express any outright opposition to the policies of the President.

ACUTE SITUATION

The present situation with regard to production of munitions, Sec. Stimson said, is "much more acute" than was that of 1917. At that time, he said, "the munitions factories and supplies of Great Britain were so abundant that they were able to supply, and did supply to us, the great bulk of the weapons which we then needed."

Today, Stimson said, "instead of being assisted by other nations in obtaining the weapons needed for our own defense, we are obliged to prepare our defense in consideration of their needs."

He gave this description of the program which the lease-lend bill would authorize the President to undertake:

"It is the essence of the President's plan as I understand it, that the United States shall become virtually the sole purchasing unit for war materials to be ordered from the manufacturers of this country; that there will thus be constituted one great funnel through which all the production of such materials in this country will be ordered and through which the materials when finished will flow from the production lines; and that consistent with our national policy, as it has been enunciated and endorsed by the Congress and the people, we shall then be in a position to apportion these munitions among ourselves and other democracies whose defense is important to us.

"This plan has many advantages. It will eliminate the competition of many different purchasing agencies from different countries. It enables us to build a well-ordered system of placing contracts and to utilize and carry into effect the studies which have been made over a period of 20 years by our Army and Navy officials in preparation for just such an emergency as we now face."

Stimson summed the measure up as "a forthright and clear grant of power which will enable the President to place in operation the best and simplest plan to carry out a national policy many times stated and endorsed."

KNOX TO TESTIFY

Stimson was the only witness called today. Secretary of Navy Knox and William S. Knudsen, director-general of defense production, will present their testimony tomorrow.

In view of the needs of Britain today as contrasted with the resources of the Allied powers of 1917, Stimson said he thought it apparent that "every possible effort should be made to simplify all steps in the production of the munitions which in the last analysis are to constitute our defense.

He added that distribution "will be governed by the interests of the defense of this country."

"Far from being a surrender of our rights to other interests, however worthy," he asserted, "the provisions of this bill make it possible to place in American hands this important power and responsibility."

The measure, Stimson continued, is "not a radical departure" from existing legislation. He cited the so-called Pittman Act under which the President was authorized to aid American republics.

"I think it is manifest," he said, "that today the defense of Great Britain is of at least as great concern to the United States as, say, the defense of Paraguay."

TINKHAM "OUT OF ORDER"

Before Stimson began reading his prepared statement, Rep. Tinkham (R.) of Massachusetts tried unsuccessfully to read as background for Stimson's impending testimony what the Congressman described as "certain statements the Secretary has made" and excerpts from the 1940 platforms of the Democratic and Republican conventions. Chairman Bloom (D.) of New York ruled that Tinkham was "out of order" at that time.

Stimson declared that at this time "it is imperative" that American industry work at top speed to furnish weapons "to Great Britain in order that she may meet the crisis which is confronting her "this spring and summer, and thus preserve her fleet as a bulwark in the Atlantic ocean."

Efforts must be made to simplify steps in munitions production, he said, and that requires "flexible means with which to act."

Stimson noted that the bill would permit the transfer to other countries of materials produced in government arsenals. Many laws permitting the disposition of government-owned war materials - already are in existence, he said, but have never been codified so as "to form a reasonable or workable program of action."

Willkie Plans Study Of British War Aims

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 (INS)—Wendell L. Willkie today completed preparations for departure Wednesday aboard a Pan-American clipper ship for Lisbon, Portugal, en route to London for a first-hand view of Britain at war.

Willkie said he planned to talk with government officials and newspaper correspondents about England's war aims; to study English wartime production methods by personal factory visits, and to talk to the people of London.

HOOVER DEMANDS CURB IN LEND LAW

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 (AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover called today on the House foreign affairs committee to draft immediately into the proposed aid-to-Britain bill positive definitions of the powers to be given President Roosevelt.

In a letter to Committee Chairman Sol Bloom (D.) of New York, who said Tuesday the committee would be glad to hear all opponents and supporters of the measure, Hoover said:

"There is, unfortunately, growing up in the country a bitterness of discussion which it seems to me in the interest of national unity could be allayed by the committee.

"This division lies largely in the interpretations and implications in respect to the powers proposed to be conferred in this bill and its meaning."

FAVORS AID

Hoover, asserting that he favored extending "every practical aid, short of war, to Britain," but that he did "not approve of our joining in the war," listed several points on which the controversy centered.

"For example," he wrote, "citizens of high patriotic thought and experience, who desire to support the President, believe that under the bill and even without any supplemental action by the Congress:

"That battleships and other naval vessels could be given away;

"That our defense could be vitally impaired by giving away army equipment;

"That equipment and materials provided in the bill could be transported through the war zone in American ships convoyed by the American navy;

"That commodities and articles could be purchased in other countries with our money;

"That alien ships now in sanctuary in our harbors could be seized;

OPENS PORTS

"That it opens American ports to repair of belligerent vessels and makes such ports bases for belligerent operations and may become the objective of them;

"That the program of gifts to Britain could begin before the very considerable resources now available to the British government in the United States had been first called upon as payment or collateral;

"That the bill could cancel parts of the labor laws, the Johnson Act, the neutrality acts, The Hague conventions and possibly other laws;

"That it empowers involvement in war as distinguished from a declaration of war by the Congress."

Hoover said there were many other questions which have been raised, among them time and expenditures, and added:

"It seems to me urgent that these matters should be at once clarified because the public mind is apprehensive and confused."

NEWPORT, Cal., Jan. 16 (AP)—The draft is just an ill wind to Capt. Claude Kearns of the ketch Nomad and his first mate, Barton Smith.

The youg men were ready to sail for Honolulu when the draft board informed them they could not go that far from port.

The board did allow them, however, an extra six months, so the 56-foot Nomad with Kearns, Smith and four others will head south for Mazatlan, Mexico, next week.

Currently showing at the Normandie Theater are "The Mark of Zorro," co-starring Tyrone Power and Linda Darnell, and 'Dance, Girl, Dance," with Maureen O Hara and Lucille Ball.

VALERIE PARKS STAR ON NEXT GLOBE BILL

Sumptuous Valerie Parks, who ranks well up front among the stage darlings who can call themselves Hub favorites, will head the feminine contingent in the burlesque carnival opening at the Globe tomorrow.

Red Marshall will remain to display the brand of comedy that had Broadwayites rolling into the aisles when this other burlesque favorite went to New York with the show in which he starred here with Bill Robinson and Imogene Coca. Red will put on his biggest laugh act for the Globe fans—the Pullman sleeper scene. This was the act that made Broadway delirious.

Elaine Lorelie and Winona Wynette are two more lovelies coming to the Globe tomorrow. Billy Fields, George Schiller and "Monkey" Kirkland will be new arrivals in the comedy line. Wynn and Wynette and Joy are listed as vaudeville headliners. The Bernardolls will frolic around in new dance numbers. "Men and Wings" and "Full Confession" are the screen offerings.

First-Nighters Awaiting Momentous 'Fantasia'

Disney's Opus Is Due On Jan. 28

An expeditionary force of first-nighters will wend their way to the hitherto untenanted Majestic Theater on the evening of Tuesday, Jan. 28, to welcome Walt Disney's impatiently awaited "Fantasia."

It should be a memorable occasion, for "Fantasia" has been widely hailed by the Manhattan and Hollywood press as the most amazing and revolutionary development in screen art since the introduction of talking pictures.

The opening night performance will be jointly sponsored by the Institute of Modern Art and the New England Town Hall and is expected to be a diamond tiara-ia event.

COMPLETE REMODELING

To adequately prepare for the momentous "Fantasia" engagement, the Majestic has undergone a complete remodeling, even to a facial uplift or, to be exact, a sand-blasting.

Installation of the tremendous amount of equipment necessary for the new and revolutionary Fantasound employed in "Fantasia" is now taking place. Until you hear dialogue and music from all parts of the theater—the front, sides, rear—you cannot appreciate Fantasound's amazing possibilities.

Nor is sound the only surprise in "Fantasia." Disney and his experts experimenting in technicolor, have evolved for the first time the use of oils, pastel chalks, water color paintings on glass the wider to let open your eyes.

ONLY IN FEW CITIES

Boston is fortunate in being the first city outside of New York where this much-discussed film will be shown.

Owing to the tremendous amount of equipment necessary for Fantasound, "Fantasia," of necessity, for physical as well as financial reasons, can be shown in but few cities in the entire country.

Hitler Film To March on Gayety Screen

Telescoping 10 years into 70 minutes, "After Mein Kamph?," opening on Gayety screen tomorrow, is described as an historical record of the Hitler war machine depredations.

The highlights that have marked the Nazis' march to power are all included in this drama of doom—the murders of Roehm and Schleicher, the sacking of homes, the ruthless extermination of all free thought and will, the blind obedience of Nazi youth to the war machine and its family-shattering results.

New York reviewers are agreed it is a must-see picture, describing it as history parading before the onlooker's eyes as the Hitler war machine ploughs under lesser nations, blitzkreigs France and bombs Britain.

Additional screen features are "Sons of Steel," with Charles Starrett, Polly Young and William Bakewell; "No Census, No Feelings," featuring the Three Stooges; newsreels and other shorts.

Navy Comedy Due For Scollay Showing

Resuming their regular Friday opening tomorrow, Scollay and Modern screens will present "Here Comes the Navy," with James Cagney and Pat O'Brien co-starring as tough tars in a rough-and-ready comedy-drama of life in the Navy.

The co-feature, "Four Daughters," features the Lane sisters, Gale Page, Jeffrey Lynn, Claude Rains and the balance of the regular Lemp family series cast.

'GONE WITH WIND' DUE BACK ON LOEW'S SCREEN

Epic Film Story to Be Shown at Lower Prices

"Gone With the Wind," David O. Selznick's fabulous screen production of Margaret Mitchell's story of the Old South, will begin a first anniversary engagement at Loew's State and Orpheum theaters this Saturday.

"Gone With the Wind" has already broken every record in motion picture history, putting in the shade the success of the 25-year-old box-office record holder, "The Birth of the Nation."

It's precedent-shattering anniversary engagement at Loew's twin theaters meets the enormous demand of those who did not see the film last year, as well as those who want a second opportunity.

No more challenging assignment was ever set before a Hollywood studio than the task of transferring "Gone With the Wind" from the printed page, a medium in which it had set a new publishing record, to the motion picture screen.

There are many superlatives about this picture which Selznick has so finely produced and Victor Fleming so humanly and amazingly directed, that one fears that words are wholly inadequate and limited. Every word, character and event in Margaret Mitchell's dramatic story lives on the screen. It contains undoubtedly the most beautiful and breath-taking Technicolor photography conceivable.

The picture will be shown in its entirety with nothing cut but the admission prices. The showing will be a regular continuous performance engagement. Matinees will be 40 cents and evenings 55 cents.

Alumni to View 'Life With Father'

Twelve members of the class of 1907, Boston Latin School, are to be guests of their distinguished classmate, Howard Lindsay, co-author of "Life With Father," at tonight's performance of the comedy at Civic Repertory Theater.

Lindsay, currently playing the resonant parent of "Life With Father" in New York, is the co-producer with Russel Crouse of Broadway's latest hit, "Arsenic and Old Lace."

UPTOWN SEATS 28 CENTS

Beginning tomorrow all seats at the Uptown will be 28 cents until 2:30 p. m.

'CHAD HANNA' AT MET

"Chad Hanna," which comes to the Metropolitan screen today, represents something new in circus pictures since it portrays not a threee-ring sawdust saga but a little wagon show which was touring central New York state around 1838.

The story centers about a triangle composed of Henry Fonda as Chad, the country boy who runs away with the circus; Linda Darnell as Caroline, who becomes a lady bareback rider, and Dorothy Lamour, the circus' high-rider known as "Albany, the Lady Lillian."

Both Director Henry King and Associate-Producer Nunnally Johnson of 20th Century-Fox paid high tribute to technicolor's contribution to the picture.

"Over half of the film was shot on location," said King. "The use of technicolor in outdoor work, where natural beauty is important to a story, means the winning of half the battle of making a good picture.

"But most important in a circus picture is the thing that makes a circus—color. The brightly painted wagons, the colorful posters, the animals—everything that matters in a real circus is made real in a circus film by technicolor."

Actor Lodge Has Busy Year

Boston's John Lodge has starred in two foreign pictures recently as well as in the stage show seen here a month ago. The Bay State Senator's brother is having the busiest year in the theater.

At the Trans-Lux is his latest picture, "Sensation," typical English melodrama in which Lodge has Diana Churchill as co-star. The lady is not related to the prime minister. Joan Marion is another noted actress in this murder mystery play in which the crime puzzle is solved by the debonair reporter played so smoothly by Lodge. Not only that but the hero at last gets a sweet "Yes" from the pretty girl impersonated by Margaret Vyner.

The other Trans-Lux attraction is "Hell's Angels," the film that made Jean Harlow famous.

JOHN LODGE

Virginia Film On at Tremont

Tremont's screen attractions through Saturday are Producer-Director Frank Lloyd's "Howards of Virginia," co-starring Cary Grant and Martha Scott, and "Wife, Doctor and Nurse," with Loretta Young and Warner Baxter.

EVENING AMERICAN, THURSDAY, JANUARY 16, 1941

A SILLY and un-American proposal aimed at the freedom of the press in Massachusetts has just been filed with the State Legislature.

Ex-Representative Harold E. Cole of Taunton, who bowed to the will of the voters when he contested with Cong. Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of North Attleboro, for a seat in the National House of Representatives in last November's election, comes forward with a bill which would strictly control newspapers and other publications during elections.

This fearless critic of newspapers would require such publications to file a statement with the Secretary of State seven days before they editorially indorse or oppose a candidate for public office or a referendum measure.

He even goes further and sponsors a resolve for investigation by a special commission as to the advisability of requiring newspapers and magazines to be conducted on a nonpartisan basis, and as to prohibiting them from indorsing candidates for public office.

The bill asks that the commission be made up of one senator, two representatives and four appointees of the governor, one of whom would be a newspaperman.

Thus one can see readily that Mr. Cole is a firm believer in the utmost freedom of the press. They would be absolutely free to do anything that Mr. Cole would permit them to do.

Such a bill will meet the fate it rightly deserves when it reaches committee, namely hurled right back at its author.

Newspapers have their faults, as they are the first to admit, but the people may well heave a sigh of relief that they are not at the mercy of the brain child drafted by the former representative from Taunton.

THE GREATEST ARMY in the world is the ARMY OF MERCY.

It is known as the American Red Cross.

It is a "pacifist" organization in the highest spiritual meaning of that term.

It is warlike in the humane meaning of that term—for it wars on pain, disease and disaster.

During 1940 the American Red Cross gave $16,690,000 in cash and supplies to victims and refugees of nine warring countries.

The American public is the most philanthropic in the world. It gave $21,739,000 last year to the Red Cross.

Every dollar of this great sum came out of the HEART of our people.

And with every dollar went up a prayer for peace on earth.

American women during the past year made 1,944,387 garments for the unfortunates of Europe and also 16,861,505 surgical dressings.

The soul of the Red Cross organization is PITY.

But it is not a sit-down-and-weep pity.

SPIRIT OF THE RED CROSS
A Bulwark for All Suffering

It is a pity of WORK and HELP.

The Red Cross contains the nucleus of what may one day be a mighty movement that will sweep around the world.

That movement will be ANTI-WAR.

That movement will unite the peoples in a WAR ON WAR.

It will be world-solidarity to combat disease, hatred and stupid national rivalries—the only "internationalism" worth while.

The phenomenal growth of the Red Cross and the growing number of Red Cross buttons that are being worn in public places reveal that an ever-greater number of persons are thinking PEACE.

The flag of the Red Cross is planted wherever there is suffering to be relieved.

It combats man's inhumanity to man.

That flag has rights, as it should have, above any other flag in the world.

Let us support the Red Cross in 1941 even more generously than we have done in 1940.

It is the one hope of the world today—the SPIRIT OF THE RED CROSS.

And what is a kiss when all is done?
A promise given under seal—a vow
Taken before the shrine of memory—
A signature acknowledged—a rosy dot
Over the I of loving.
—Rostand.

IN THAT CHAPTER of your life titled "Remembered Kisses" which kiss is the best remembered? Was your current matrimonial partner the hero or heroine of this occasion?

Was Bertha Von Stuttner who observed: "After the verb 'to love,' 'to help' is the most beautiful verb in the world!" . . . Who recalls that touching story "My Mamie Rose" by Owen Kildare. And "Regeneration," the film based on it?

FILM STARS have fallen in love with doctors, oil men, lawyers; even with newspapermen but Brenda Joyce is the first to love a certified public accountant. The lucky man, one Owen Ward, and Brenda were discussing income tax returns when love walked in . . . Pauline Gallagher is another restaurant owner who achieved fame and fortune specializing in steaks. Pauline specializes in steaks from the Argentine.

HOWARD JONES, football coaching genius, won so many Rose Bowl games they began to call the bowl "Jones' Half Acre," is one of the two celebrated men from Excello, O., other being his brother "Tad" Jones. At Phillips-Exeter the Joneses in baseball formed a brother battery; they were one year opposed by Phillips-Andover brother battery of Browns. Andover won, of course. Howard who instead of singing in the shower recites dramatic poetry, has shelved "Gunga Din," "Boots" and "The Man Who Had an Elephant on His Hands" for "Hiawatha Harrigan," which goes, in part, as follows:

He killed the noble mudjokivis
Of the skin he made his mittens,
Made them with the fur side inside,
Made them with the fur side outside.
He, to get the warm side inside
Put the inside skin side outside;
He, to get the cold side outside,
Put the warm side fur side inside.
That's why he put the fur side inside.
Why he put the skin side outside
Why he turned them inside outside . . .

-:- MY DAY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 — The first party opening the infantile paralysis drive was held here at the White House. Decorations designed by Mrs. Lester Gaba were used for the table. These decorations can be carried out for any small party which any woman may be able to give in her own home for a small group of friends. I hope that many women will feel an interest in having parties for the purpose of helping the children who have suffered from infantile paralysis in the past, or who may suffer in the future.

Mrs. Claude Wickard, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, and Miss Grace Moore took part in the broadcast before we had tea. I think the most appealing and effective person in the room and on the air was Dolores Francis, about eight years old, who was a victim at the age of four months. She showed what care and gallantry of spirit will do in the way of rehabilitation, and spoke clearly and simply.

IMMEDIATELY AFTER TEA, I went over to the place outside of the National Broadcasting Co. building, where the "Mile of Dimes" was started and spoke a few words over the radio. They tell me that there are thirty other cities in which "Miles of Dimes" programs are being arranged this year.

I went to the children's hospital for the photographs and movies of the work which is being done there. These are used in the infantile paralysis drive.

There are two appointments before lunch and then I shall have the pleasure of lunching with Mrs. Frank Knox, wife of the Secretary of the Navy. This lunch was postponed because I wanted to go to meet my children on their arrival at Hyde Park last week-end. I am still grateful for Mrs. Knox's understanding of my desire to be in the country for two days with the children when they arrrived in the East.

Yesterday I had a delightful time with Mrs. Robert Jackson, wife of the Attorney-General. This seems to be a week of lunches with the Cabinet ladies.

THE NATIONAL CONFERENCE of Christians and Jews has just notified me that the week of February 22nd and 28th, 1941, will be designated as the eighth annual Brotherhood Week; when Protestants, Catholics and Jews in over 2000 communities will join together to consider how best to maintain this country, "one nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

Let us hope that the spirit which has built this country will remain with us always and that we shall never forget that people of all races and religions have made our nation strong and that only by remaining united can we remain so.

Rudy Vallee

Broadway Medley

PHONE CALLS WILL REACH VALLEE

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—Russel Crouse and Alison Smith have in their household a number of pet cats. But "Miss Frothingham" is their favorite. They have a scrap book containing all the newspaper clippings about her. And at the premiere of each show in which Crouse has an interest he always receives an opening night wire from "Miss Frothingham" . . . At last week's premiere of "Arsenic and Old Lace," the new hit produced by Lindsay and Crouse, he received this wire from the cat: "Tell me if it's a hit. Curiosity is almost killing me."

• • •

EXAMPLE: Ed Gardner, director of the Rudy Vallee program, was instructed by Rudy to phone him whenever any problem arose . . . "Don't forget," Vallee reminded. "Call me—at any time" . . . "But that may be impossible," Gardner suggested. "Suppose you're up at your camp in Maine and I'm out here in California. Wouldn't I have trouble in getting to you?" . . . "Call me," Vallee stated. "After all—Bullitt reached the President each time, didn't he?"

MRS. P. G. WODEHOUSE

• • •

TIME: Frank Vreeland, the drama critic and editor of a new humor magazine, finds great irony in the fact that P. G. Wodehouse now is a prisoner of the Germans, and writing his new novel while in their custody. Wodehouse was in New York at the beginning of the World War and found that his literary reputation at last was being established . . . He was engulfed by so many orders from editors and producers for stories and plays that his secretary placed in front of his typewriter a schedule showing the dates when his novel was due, when the next short story was expected and when his play was to be completed . . . Mrs. Wodehouse, who did ambulance work in England, arrived here and found him working diligently at his typewriter . . . "We're at war," she reminded. "Shouldn't you go over and lend a hand?" . . . Wodehouse interrupted his typing, looked at his schedule and said: "I can let them have two weeks next August."

• • •

POLITICS: Milton Berle, who returned from Hollywood this week, was to have participated at the opening ceremonies of the new race track in California. Gov. Culbert L. Olson was to officiate . . . The opening was postponed, because of a five-day rain, which made the track too muddy. "Just how much mud is there at the track?" Berle asked Gov. Olson . . . "There's so much mud," he replied "—almost enough to start another anti-Roosevelt campaign."

• • •

QUERY: When Mrs. Oscar Levant was taken to the hospital for the arrival of her baby, Oscar paced the corridors until, exhausted, he fell asleep in one of the armchairs . . . A nurse, bringing the happy tidings, found the new father dozing. She shook him until he awoke and said: "It's a girl, Mr. Levant. A girl" . . . "A girl?" answered Oscar, drowsily. "What's her name?"

• • •

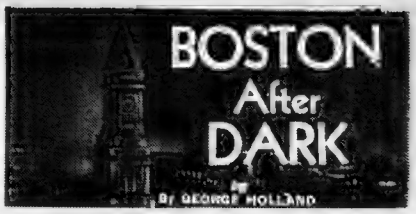
WARNING: A song plugger who returned from Washington last week-end told his colleagues that he was one of those privileged to see the President make his opening address to Congress, which was broadcast through all the hookups . . . "How'd you feel," he was asked, "when you saw Roosevelt step up to the microphones?" . . . "I felt like warning him," said the song plugger. "Remember, now—no whistling any bars of ASCAP music.'"

• • •

TRIUMPHS: "Doodles" Weaver of "Meet the People" came to the Stork Club last night and sat with Vincent Youmans, the song writer . . . "Do your routines get over in the show?" asked Youmans . . . "Do they?" replied Weaver. "Tonight I stopped the show three times—on hisses alone."

• • •

LAMENT: Solly Violinsky, who was one of Broadway's best-known wits, was signed by a film company a long time ago, went to Hollywood, but found no employment for many years. He now has ended his long exile from Broadway and is en route home . . . "But what will you do in New York?" Solly was asked . . . "Oh, I'll stay there five years," he explained, "until Hollywood rediscovers me."



CONSTERNATION IS TOO MILD a word for the result, amid the Florida "sporting world," of the action of the authorities in raiding "Slapsie Maxie" Rosenbloom's gilded salon in Miami . . . Outfitted with paraphernalia worth nearly $30,000, at prices of $3000 (for instance) per roulette wheel, the place was supposed to have been given what the boys call "the okay."

THE "INSIDE" OF THE GRAB—which included a seizure of much money, said money thenceforth becoming the property of the state, as in Massachusetts—is that two groups of gendarmes are demanding "recognition" . . . One is the sheriff's group, and the other comprises the police . . . Trouble of a somewhat unofficial nature is being predicted.

KATHARINE CORNELL HAS DECIDED to fall back on G. Bernard Shaw (who no longer uses the initial "G.") . . . The great Kit will offer "The Doctor's Dilemma" as her 11th production in ten years, and as her third item by Mr. Shaw . . . The others were "Candida" and "Saint Joan" . . . Shaw wrote the newest Cornell vehicle in 1906 . . . It has been produced twice in New York . . . The Lunts played it for the Theater Guild in 1928.

THE SIGNIFICANT POINT of this little story is, however, that Miss Cornell's unexpected decision to revive a Shaw standard work sees the two foremost actresses of the American stage—the other of course, is Helen Hayes—being forced to rely on a couple of English playwrights, Shaw and the author of "Twelfth Night," for their 1941 acting material.

RHODE ISLAND PAPERS MAY COPY: Gov. J. Howard McGrath will appoint his able campaign manager, Dan Ryan, to the post of Commissioner of Public Works . . . It will be the first major appointment of the McGrath administration, and should be announced within a week.

THE NAME OF MR. RYAN MAY now be removed from the list of "possibles" for the key post of racing commissioner. (He could have had the job if he desired it) . . . New England track owners can eliminate also the name of Racing Commissioner Louis Gerry as a "refill" . . . He will not be reappointed . . . Until the R. I. racing commissioner is appointed, the complete racing schedule for next summer hereabouts cannot be settled.

ROCKINGHAM CAN GET SUCH racing dates as the track requests from the New Hampshire authorities, but unless a conflict and costly overlapping of meetings is to be avoided, the 'Gansett and Rockingham dates must gibe . . . If 'Gansett gets the dates it asks, with an extra week or more in the summer, the Rockingham management says it will "fight" . . . There may really be a "racing war" . . . Although former Governor Murphy of New Hampshire has intervened in the situation already.

BELLE BAKER'S PREMIERE at The Mayfair nearly equalled the enthusiastic reception given Sophie Tucker in her record-breaking week a year ago . . . Miss Baker sang a medley of her "oldies," including "Ten Baby Fingers," "Alabama Bound" and "Blue Skies" . . .

KATHARINE CORNELL
To Play in Shaw Opus

She has lost 23 pounds, and is nearly 23 times as effective (and attractive).

MURIEL SHERMAN IS NOW MRS. JOHN V. N. Wilson, and the ceremony tied a couple of McCoy "childhood sweethearts" . . . Mr. W. plays with Irving Aaronson's Commanders, a good band which sticks pretty close to the Pacific Slope, and the new vocalist of the band, as of Monday past, is Muriel Sherman.

DOROTHY KILGALLEN REPORTS that Frank Case, the literary boniface of New York's famed Hotel Algonquin, sneaked up in back of Boris Karloff, who is now working in a play called "Arsenic and Old Lace" . . . "Curdling any blood today?" Mr. Case demanded of Mr. Karloff . . . Senator Robert L. Lee of Charlestown will be feted February 17 at the Westminster.

Hollywood Today

'CHARLEY'S AUNT' TO BE FILMED AGAIN

By Louella O. Parsons

Louis Hayward

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 16 (INS)—Hold everything! "Charley's Aunt" is again headed for the movies. Brandon Thomas' old comedy, first produced in London in 1893, was bought today by 20th Century-Fox for the unprecedented sum of $110,000. Sydney Chaplin made it for Warners in the silent days but of course the purchase didn't include the talkie rights. The revival of "Charley's Aunt" in New York last year undoubtedly had something to do with Darryl Zanuck's determination to remake it.

Ever since the play opened on Broadway it has been doing sensational business. Nedda Harrigan has been seen in one of the top roles and everyone who goes to New York raves over her and over the play. It has been seen by almost as many people as "Hamlet" and really holds the long-distance record for plays. No cast has yet been selected.

IDA LUPINO

THE LAST TIME I talked to Ida Lupino she told me she hoped one day that she and Louis Hayward, her husband, could make a picture together. Her wish comes true much sooner than she hoped for Ida and Louis will co-star in "Gentle People," the Irwin Shaw play—and what a surprise that play was to Franchot Tone's fans, for it was the first time they had ever seen him as a baddie. Franchot's role is that of a conscienceless boy to whom murder is only a part of a day's work, and of course it will be played by Louis while Ida will play the part Sylvia Sidney created on the stage. Anatole Litvak, who is directing, will start shooting before many days.

• • •

CLAUDETTE COLBERT returns from Sun Valley, leaving her favorite sport of skiing, to go to work. Paramount has finally found a co-starring partner for her for "Skylark" and it's Brian Aherne, no less. Mark Sandrich today put the coveted Aherne's name on a contract. Interesting that the very first picture Brian made in Hollywood was with Marlene Dietrich for Paramount. It was after he appeared with Katharine Cornell in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" and every studio in the business was trying to nab him. Since that time Brian has appeared in much better pictures than Marlene's "Song of Songs"—"My Son, My Son," "Juarez" and "Hired Wife."

• • •

SYLVIA FAIRBANKS will not play Vera in "A Woman's Face," principally because George Cukor feels it is too heavy a role for her first and that she should start with something much simpler. Joan Crawford couldn't have been nicer to Sylvia when she was testing. She made all the scenes with her and helped her with her makeup and with suggestions. George says if Sylvia would take a less important role in "A Woman's Face," he would love to direct her, for she really has something to offer. Whether or not Sylvia wants to make a picture now I don't know—she is talking about going to South America on a good-will tour.

• • •

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Betty Grable has gone into the hospital suffering with an impacted wisdom tooth; Olivia De Havilland doesn't look like Marlene Dietrich but Burgess Meredith is finding her excellent company; Virginia Gilmore, blonde beauty and Fritz Lang, the director, have discovered each other; I keep hearing that Dick Powell and Joan Blondell have made a pact to make only two pictures a year—one with each other and one alone; the party Countess Barbara Hutton Von Reventlow is giving Saturday night is in honor of Cary Grant's birthday and there will be no announcement made. Barbara is not yet legally free and until she gets her divorce from her husband she will not become engaged to Cary or anyone else; the ten Western Union boys Mervyn Leroy sent to sing happy brithday to Jack Benny and Allan Jones, were so embarrassed Mary Martin had to come to their rescue; Mickey Rooney doesn't care who knows that he's excited over going to the inaugural luncheon; Laraine Day's latest admirer is Ray Hendricks, a singer; Carmen Miranda's favorite slang phrase is, "What's cooking?"; the telephone companies must just love Milton Berle—when he's in Hollywood he telephones Joyce Mathews and when he's in New York he telephones Mary Beth Hughes.

Grippe Cases Drop, Schools Still Close

Hardy New Englanders today were shaking off a slackening wave of colds and grippe still virulent enough to force closing of still more schools and retarding of even emergency defense work.

Schools in Westminster and Dracut and in Nashua, N. H., were ordered closed. Classrooms in Salem reopened after a four-day shut down and were closed down again as sickness cases showed further increases.

In Boston, School Superintendent Arthur L. Gould reported a dwindling sick list for both pupils and teachers.

Defense work at Fore River shipyards, where some 10,000 men are employed, was slowed down by absence of more than 1450 workers.

The Boston postal district was no exception, and Postmaster Peter F. Tague described mail delivery work as "seriously hampered" by illness of some 600 clerks.

ment. Later I walked to the theater and afterwards, with Spartan self-denial, had only a cup of black coffee.

Will I lose on this schedule? I don't know, but I'll be pretty mad if I don't, after going through all this. Yesterday, after I had finished my table exercises, I was introduced to a rowing machine. Somehow I don't mind that. It seems easy at first, but then you begin to feel it in those abominable abdominal muscles.

For those who want to lose weight but haven't the will power to do it, or think they haven't, I want to go on record (and can I get witnesses to prove it?) as the weakest-willed woman in the world, where food and parties are concerned, if I can say "No" to potatoes, anything can happen.

As for parties . . . I know I'll have to avoid them. Tomorrow I'm invited to a gay theatrical gathering at the Ritz-Carlton. If I go, and see those yummy hors d'oeuvres, I'm a gone goose. So I'll just stay away . . . I hope.

I didn't get on a scales today. I don't dare weigh myself except at the gym, for fear the scales may vary and I'll be plunged into false despair or delight. But tomorrow tells the tale.

(Will Mary lose another pound? Tomorrow tells the tale. Exert that will power, Mary. We're betting on you.)

Home and Kitchen

HERE'S a breakfast that's just the thing to wake up appetites. Roll well-browned link sausages into medium size hot cakes and serve on slices of pineapple cooked in the sausage fat.

Enticing Breakfast Will Get You Out of Bed

By MARTHA LEE

Too long, breakfast has been a catch-as-catch-can meal, seldom worth getting up for, grabbed on the run, or not eaten at all. Yet there's nothing like the promise of a good breakfast to get small boys, and those grown tall, out of bed.

For instance, a better breakfast than bacon and eggs, flanked by golden brown toast is hard to find—but when the same breakfast is served with pineapple slices browned to a nicety in the bacon drippings, and the eggs appear on toast rounds, you have something new and different—a regular "blue plate" special.

There won't be any need for an alarm clock when there's the fragrance of griddle cakes, little pig sausages and grilled pineapple slices drifting up the stairs. And such a breakfast is no task at all to prepare, especially with the prepared flours available in the market today. Just to be different, bake three hot cakes, roll into each a well-browned link sausage, and set them down on two pineapple slices browned in the sausage fat.

HOT BREADS

If waffles are a family favorite, give them a little variety by dressing them up with a few maraschino cherries, sliced, and a bit of brown sugar.

French toast uses up the day-before bread in such a nice way. Try adding about 2 tablespoons of sugar and a dash of nutmeg to 1 egg and ¾ cup of milk for the "dip." Brown the bread slices, after dipping, in butter or drippings (or cook them in the waffle iron.) Serve with sauteed fruit and melted currant jelly.

Serve hot muffins often and vary the batter by adding chopped figs, applesauce and dates, prunes or apricots; or make plain muffins and top each with a teaspoon of currant or some other jelly.

FIG MUFFINS

1 cup dried figs
3 cups sifted flour
4 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
2 tbsp. sugar
5 tbsp. shortening
1¾ cups milk
1 egg, beaten

Pour boiling water over figs, cover and let stand 10 minutes. Drain, clip stems and cut in small pieces. Sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar together. Cut in shortening until of consistency of coarse meal. Combine milk and beaten egg and add to dry ingredients, stirring only until moistened. Fold in cut fig and pour into greased muffin pans 2-3 full and bake in a moderately hot oven (425 deg. F.) 25 minutes. Makes 18 to 20 muffins.

APPLESAUCE AND DATE MUFFINS

2 cups sifted flour
3 tbsp. sugar
4 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup milk
½ cup applesauce
3 tbsp. melted butter
½ cup chopped dates

Sift flour, sugar, baking powder and salt together. Combine eggs and milk and add to dry ingredients, stirring only until moistened. Add applesauce and butter and blend well. Fold in chopped dates. Fill well greased muffin pans 2-3 full and bake in moderately hot oven (400 deg. F.) 20 minutes. Makes 12 muffins.

PLAIN MUFFINS

4 tbsp. shortening
½ cup sugar
2 eggs, separated
3 tbsp. cold water
2½ cups sifted flour
4 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. ground nutmeg
1 cup milk

Cream shortening, add sugar gradually, creaming until light and fluffy. Add egg yolks and beat well. Add cold water. Sift flour, baking powder, salt and nutmeg together and add to creamed mixture alternately with milk. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into greased muffin pans 2-3 full and bake in moderately hot oven (425 deg. F.) 20 minutes, or until lightly browned. Serve hot. Makes 14 muffins.

You Can Be Beautiful

Bath Powder Sale Offers Rare Treat

By ARLINE GOULD

HOW'S YOUR bargain sense? If you've learned to tell the nonsenses from the real buys, you're a wise shopper . . . and you're the one who'll be interested in a bath powder sale we've discovered.

A very fine, famous house is hanging its bath powder box design . . . though why, we don't know . . . because the beautiful white simplicity of the big cylinder is definitely decorative to our way of thinking. So . . . the regular $1 size, containing 10 ounces, will be 66c as long as the quantity lasts.

It has a large, fluffy puff . . . and everything is spanky new as can be, the fragrances luxurious and fresh . . . this is definitely not a sale of pawed-over merchandise.

Unusual are the scents . . . we're captivated by all three . . . a regal lily, white lilac, and heliotrope. And you may be sure there's no after-bath powder more carefully blended to be soothing to a winter-irritated skin . . . as gossamer and fine as possible.

Think ahead to all the little gift-occasions of springtime and summer, and be ready with this delicately feminine tribute . . . to your own taste and the recipients . . . for showers, birthdays, or little "thank you" tokens.

And if you send up a fluffy white cloud every time you step out of the tub . . . using powder as though you could afford to buy the nicest by the bale . . . then stock up your own bathroom . . . with all three fragrances!

C.O.D.'s are available . . . again, we caution, while the quantity lasts . . . but the order shouldn't be under a dollar, because of postage expense.

If you'd like shopping information on this special, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days except Saturday, or write, care of the Boston Evening American, including a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN

PEGGY STUART'S accomplishments have no limit, it seems. She's an expert figure skater, a painter, composer, and the only woman conductor of a Junior League Orchestra in the country. Now she has added waltzing to her list of achievements and with Bill Read, a fellow Cantabridgian, as her partner, won the prize for the most graceful and expert gliding to three-quarter rhythm at this week's Waltzing Party at the Hotel Somerset . .

Peggy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willoughby Stuart, Jr., of Cambridge . . . She danced in a full skirted gown of cream chiffon with small black lace butterflies appliqued on the skirt, a brief black lace bolero and diamond bracelets . . . Bill swirled and glided in white tie and tails while his wife, the former Mabel Bell, beamed proudly from the sidelines and waited to share the champagne prize with them . . .

Runners-up in the contest, whose timing and rhythm were so perfect that the judges had to deliberate a long time before finally choosing the winning couple, were Anne Phillips and Dorothy Comstock and their partners . . . Anne's pale blue tulle skirt billowed out from a blue and gold fitted bodice . . . "Deedee," who was in Rosamond Higgins' dinner party crowd, was dressed in midnight blue tulle over silver with touches of silver applique around the waistline . . .

Rosamond Higgins presided at a long table which included a group of young friends who had dined previously at her mother's Brookline home . . . She wore a billowy peach tulle skirt with a matching satin bodice . . . Among her guests were Dorothy Storer, whose black velvet gown had a full skirt made of alternating bands of black and white, Emily Rice in powder blue slipper satin, Anne Motley, Joanna Hoyt and their escorts . . .

Mrs. Gale Nicknamed 'Ostrich Feathers'

MRS. ELBRIDGE GALE may not be aware of it, but some of the other dancers who didn't know her name nicknamed her "ostrich feathers" for the evening . . . because of her fluffy white costume which was lavishly trimmed with white ostrich . . .

The gown was of white chiffon with a deep band of ostrich outlining the swirling hem and peplum, and forming tiny puff sleeves . . . a cluster of the same feathers adorned her blonde hair . . . She and Mr. Gale were in a party with Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Coolidge, Hamilton Warren, Harrison Proctor and Dr. and Mrs. Tibor de Cholnoky, who are beautiful waltzers and just missed out in the final eliminations in the contest . . . Mrs. de Cholnoky wore a white gown with a pleated skirt and a long sleeved fitted jacket bordered with delicate gold embroidery . . .

Still others gliding and whirling to the strains of Harry Marshard's special string arrangements were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird and their daughter Diana . . . Mrs. Bird wore a corsage of springlike yellow freesia on her pale gray gown, and Diana's lovely ruffled black and white lace was enhanced by green satin slippers and a green hanky . . . Mrs. William Endicott in peach satin, Mary Morison, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hunter Thompson, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cunningham, Nancy and Phil Tucker, Martha Bird, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Sprague, Bella Grandin with Vincent Lamb, and Mrs. Sedgwick Marquand . . .

PRISCILLA DAMON, post deb daughter of Mr. J. Linfield Damon of Brookline, will be too busy to notice whether March comes in like a lamb or a lion, for she has chosen Saturday, March 1, as the date of her marriage to William Russell Fawcett of Los Angeles, Cal. . . .

Their engagement was announced yesterday at a luncheon given by Priscilla's father . . .

Waiting Is Also Service

By Alissa Keir

"IT'S NOT that I'm a narrow minded old Puritan," the handsome white-haired woman's lips quivered. "I'm not prejudiced against this Jake person because he works behind the bar he owns—this would simply prove to me that he's industrious.

"Please believe me, when I tell you I'm sure there are plenty of fine young men in the liquor business I'll be content to have for a son-in-law. But this man—Linda brought him up here the other night. There's something sinister about him. I feel he's no good," she shuddered. "I'm afraid for Linda."

"She isn't actually thinking of marrying him?" Philip Dexter asked incredulously.

"That's why I sent for you," Mrs. Kennedy said eagerly. "She thinks I'm horrified at the idea because it brings us still further down the social ladder than we've gone since her father died. But that simply isn't true."

The tone that accentuated the humor of Philip Dexter's face deepened. "She must be out of her mind," he said.

DOCTOR HEARS STORY

You're not only Linda's friend, you're her physician," Mrs. Kennedy pleaded. "I thought perhaps she would listen to you. You have so many contacts in this neighborhood [though your practice—I hoped you'd know something definite about the man."

Too much, I'm sorry to say," Philip answered miserably. "Your hunch about his character, is perfectly correct." He paced up and down the room. "How did Linda ever meet him?"

As far as I can make out," she said, "Mary and Bill Frawley took her there originally. They've always talked about the fun they have at Jake's place. The food is good and not expensive. I understand there's a dining room when you pass beyond the bar and the Frawleys eat there whenever Mary is in town [to work."

But I don't understand Linda isn't the kind of girl to get a sudden crush on a man she meets at a bar," he said in amazement.

"The first time—it's only two weeks ago, he wasn't mixing drinks in his white coat," Mrs. Kennedy explained. "He had changed and was going home early. When he saw the three of them sitting at a table he joined them and invited them to be his guests. It seems he took a fancy to Linda there and then.

According to what he told me, he considered she had more 'class' —if all things than any girl he'd ever seen." Her lips stiffened.

"He made it a point to impress on me I should feel at ease, in so far as his intentions towards her were strictly honorable," Mrs. Kennedy added ironically.

JUST A STRANGER

"Good heavens—can't she realize he's practically a stranger to her?" Philip exclaimed impatiently.

"She won't let you discuss the subject," Mrs. Kennedy interrupted. "After all, Linda is over twenty-one; she's earning enough to support herself—in fact she's practically supporting me. To a certain extent therefore, this is her home and not mine. What can I do?" she asked desperately.

"Does she go to his place by herself?" Philip asked.

"Oh, yes. Practically every evening either for dinner or when she feels I shouldn't be left alone, she visits with him for a while before she goes to bed. She's perfectly frank about it all. She says he works at night, and she works by day, and that's the only way she can see him."

"But haven't you told Linda it looks bad, even in this day and age for a young woman to sit alone at a bar night after night and that old man Blake wouldn't be any too happy about it, if he heard that his private secretary had acquired the habit?" Philip asked.

OTHER ROMANCE BARED

"Of course I have. But she doesn't care. She tells me the nicest people in town go to Jake's place—that there is a row of windows, so you can see everything that goes on there from the street. She therefore claims it's a highly respectable spot."

"Poor Linda," Philip grinned. "If you don't mind, I'll call her on the phone right now and ask her to meet me for dinner tonight. I can tell her plenty about Jake—perhaps it will help."

But he didn't make much headway. She was perfectly aware that Jake had been married before. Before Philip could interrupt she told him it was her contention that scores of decent men are divorced from their wives. It was an disgrace, and far better than bickering in misery.

Besides, Jake had explained to her—he had married Rose, when he wasn't much more than a kid. Rose had remained a little European peasant girl, and so he had outgrown her during the 10 years they'd lived together. Rose was back in her own country with a decent financial settlement.

"So what, Philip?" she looked him straight in the eye.

"Did he ever tell you, Linda, how Rose came to lose her baby after a mysterious fall downstairs?" he asked her gently.

"It's a miracle she's alive. I was her doctor—I heard what she said in her delirium. The fact of the matter is, Jake kicked her downstairs," Philip quietly asserted. "He thought she might feel inclined to blabble some day—so he forced her to divorce him and sent her home."

TELLS OF LOVE

But that's not fair," Linda said vehemently. "People say all kinds of things that aren't so, when they're unconscious. And as I know you, Philip, if you'd had anything on Jake, you'd have reported him."

Perfectly correct. But the point is I couldn't because there were no witnesses and Rose denied it all to me, when she was well."

"So you see—" Linda triumphed. She shook her long ash blonde bob at him defiantly.

Ah, no, my dear. Rose was terrified of Jake. She had good reason to be. Jake is a bad actor, when he's drinking."

"Why, Philip!" Linda was shocked. "I've never seen him take even a glass of beer!"

"Probably not. Jake is one of those guys who goes on a periodical drinking spree shut up in a room by himself for days without eating. When he emerges, it's just too bad for anybody that crosses his path. But he's a hard, mean man even when he's sober. That is except when he's hypnotizing the customers or stalking some special game. At the moment the game is you, my poor darling," he said, looking at her pityingly.

"You know I love you, Linda. I don't have to tell you. I'd hoped in a year or so, when my practice has had a chance to grow—" she would not let him finish his sentence.

"That's no reason for being so incredibly unfair," she pulled herself away from him. "I thought you were a good sport—I never thought you'd hit below the belt," she said indignantly.

LEAVES IN RAGE

"Making accusations against a man that you can't prove, when he isn't even here to deny them," she said in a passionate rage. "You've shown yourself in a new light. You've been trying to tell me, I suppose, that Jake isn't my kind—well, let me tell you, you're not my kind of a person yourself."

She rose from her chair. "Good-by Philip." She ignored his protesting hand.

"Linda, please," he begged. "This is no way—I couldn't let you go on with this infatuation of yours, without trying to warn you. But I'll always love you, Linda. The time is coming, I'm afraid darling, when you'll need help. Remember I'll be waiting."

She rushed out to throw herself into a taxi giving Jake's address through tears that stung. She'd feel better when she'd seen Jake—somehow the things Philip had told her, left her with a certain uneasiness.

It was a wet night and the place was comparatively empty, when she seated herself on a stool at the end of the bar.

Jake leaned over and whispered into her ear. "I'm having a little trouble, Honey." He nodded toward the young man beside her, who had obviously taken more drinks than he could hold.

Perhaps it was the bright red hair and freckles that made him seem a mere boy, Linda reflected pityingly, as she watched him swaying back and forth. Suddenly he encircled with his arms, the rows of shining empty glasses before him, breaking them into pieces with his bare hands.

SOBS WEAKLY

Linda gave a cry of horror, watching the blood drip from the hands he put into his coat pockets, as he sauntered out in a blank daze. Involuntarily she started to follow him.

"Just a minute till I change my coat," Jake called after her. Promptly he caught up with them, tapping the man on the shoulder.

"That stunt of yours will cost you just $7, Buddie," he snapped sharply.

"That all? Sorry Jake," he mumbled apologetically handing out seven bills covered with blood. He didn't seem drunk any longer. His face shone dead white beneath the freckles.

"No, that't not all," Jake snarled. His fist shot out in a vicious blow. "That will teach you not to make a mess of my bar."

Come along, Honey." He turned to Linda, ignoring the man trying weakly to rise from the pavement.

"No, Jake, I'm not going with you—I never want to see you again—you're horrible." She shook off his arm in disgust. "Thank goodness I found out in time what you are like." She started to sob weakly.

"But you can't go home like that—what will your mother say?" he said angrily.

I'm not going home—I'm taking this man to the doctor's."

BAY STATE BOYS SHOW MERITS

D, Thomas V. Hunton, 2d, "I wouldn't trade a half-acre of New England for a hundred miles of this."

SAFARI ARRIVES

It was mid-afternoon when the safari arrived at Indianola, a scrub wilderness which was only a name commemorating the ghost town which had been wiped out by hurricane and tidal waves and where now only the outlines of cellars and streets remained.

The caravan deployed, according to companies and platoons, the guns, lights and detectors lining methodically to one side of the naked tent area, the trucks scattering among the staked out "streets" and dumping their loads. "Home Sweet Home," sang Private Eddie Healy, glancing quizzically around the burdock, scrabbly stretch with its few stunted trees.

Tents went up swiftly and expertly, the eight-man squads placing poles under the shapeless canvas, hoisting it into place with concerted "Ughs" and pegging the guide ropes down. There were no cement floors as there were at Hulen, no wooden frames or wire mosquito mesh.

Just bare ground, poles, rope and weather-proof canvas. But it was amazing that acres of tents, in shape and color like ninety large chicken croquettes, could form so suddenly. In less than an hour the "First" was sheltered, the rolling kitchens were smoking and mess sergeants were stirring kettles of "slum."

COTS UNFOLDED

Iron cots were unfolded, blanket packs unrolled, gear and duffle sorted, sentries posted, details assigned, and a well-oiled routine established from the HQ tent. And presently a bugle, the soldier's alarm clock, sounded "Assembly" and non-coms were bawling "Fall In," while the soldiers tumbled from tents to form in the company street.

"Right Dress," barked the sergeants, as the lines jostled at proper elbow intervals and turned chins smartly toward the guides. "Front! . . . count off!"

From all over camp came the rapid roll of voices, some guttural, some treble, "One . . . two . . . three . . . four" as squads tolled off their marching positions — Henry Abt, Charles Pye, Jr., Dick Hunkins, Bill Forsyth, Joe Quinn, Abe Rockwood — boys lately of Boston civil life, lads drawn from every social strata to learn the latest lethal arts, young men lean, bronzed and cheerful under the rugged semi-hardships of military rigor.

(Soldiers, B'gawd! Col. Stewart Hall had said with a white light of pride in his eye.) They looked it, these intermingled dungareed and olive-drab ranks! Soldiers, B'gawd!

DUSK FALLS QUICKLY

Dusk falls quickly in East Texas, not by gradual stages but by whole sudden octaves and it was thick and murky gloom before the battalion electricians had strung their light wires and supplied illumination current from their searchlight generators. They knew their stuff! And appreciative cheers went up as the first string of bulbs flickered, went black and then flared steadily on.

"Ta-ta . . . ta-ta . . . ta-ta." Mess and the clatter of metal kits and jostling lines. The odor of steaming "Java." Slabs of "punk"—good white baker's bread. Ladles of honest stew.

Hasty slogging back to tent shelters to sit, munch, swiggle and chat. Leisurely smokes and dousing of kits under water spigots from pipe lines laid long ago by Hulen engineers. Good life?

"Hell, we get to like it," said Corporal Paul Capron, late of the Boston American city staff. "Haven't read a newspaper in two months," he said. National news isn't important here. Just good, undependable camp gossip."

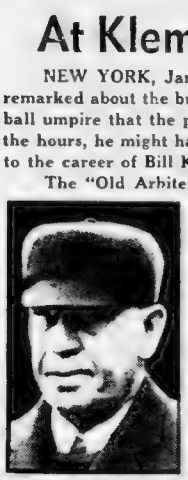
BILL CORUM SAYS:

'Arbitrator' at Anchor At Klem's Miami Home

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—When the famed Tim Hurst remarked about the business of being a professional baseball umpire that the pay was good and you couldn't beat the hours, he might have been looking on down the years to the career of Bill Klem.

The "Old Arbiter" was in New York to attend the Baseball Writers' testimonial dinner to the Stevens family.



BILL KLEM

The one and only Klem is now a retired, or semi-retired umpire. But one would have to search far to find a younger feeling, more contented, more happily situated man. Bill not only has a beautiful and pleasant home hard by the bright blue waters of the "Wonderful Isle of Dreams," in Miami but also a yacht to go with it.

Well, if not a yacht, at least a boat. And Bill says it is the biggest and finest "five-hundred-dollar boat" in the world.

While he was building his home, President Harridge of the American League stopped by on an inspection tour.

"This looks pretty fine, Bill," said Harridge. "But tell me, what are you going to have out here on this part of the property running down to the bay?"

"First of all I'm going to have a fine dock," replied Bill, "and at the end of the dock I'm going to have a boat of my own; I've already got a name for it."

"And what are you going to call it, Bill?" asked Harridge.

"I'm going to call it 'The Arbitrator,'" said Bill, "and when I retire and you come down here to see me, I'll take you for a ride over the bounding main."

Several times since then Mr. Harridge, who heads the American League, while Klem has put in his many years in the iron mask in the National but who knows that Bill belongs to all of baseball, has asked him about "The Arbitrator."

"The Arbitrator" Awaits:

EACH TIME Klem has had to tell him that the boat of his dreams wasn't yet in operation. But now he is laying for Prexy Will. For "The Arbitrator," proud brass name plate and all, rides majestically at anchor at the Klem private dock. So when Harridge drives down to Miami this spring from Sebring, Fla., to start his tour of the American League training camps, Bill will be there waiting to take him for the long-promised ride.

Happy as a kid about it, too, which certainly is the right way to grow gracefully old. I mean never getting to the point where there no longer is a thrill. Bill Klem always manages to find one. Which may explain why he seems perennially young.

Ford Frick has recently assigned him to a new job as supervisor of the N. L. mask and chest protector brigade. But Bill isn't planning to make his new job a sinecure.

"I'll be out there," he says, "in those tough series where four umpires are needed. You wouldn't remember it, but they introduced that four-umpire system so I could get into the World Series of 1908, and it's been a great help to the game. I mean to say that it gives everybody on the field confidence, even though using it the first time was practically an accident.

"Besides which, if anybody gets sick, or hurt, I'll be right there ready to step in."

"You mean to say," I asked, "that you are planning to go to a ball game every afternoon during the season?"

"Of course," replied Bill, expressing amazement that anybody would ask such a foolish question. "Where else would I go in the afternoons?"

After 40 years, I suppose it is only natural that Bill should feel that way. But possibly only Bill. Some of us might count 40 years a career and be willing to quit. Not the "Old Arbiter," who never called one wrong and swears he can see balls and strikes today better than ever. About which he might be right, at that. Isn't there some sort of saying about a man being no older that he feels?

"Papa Joe" Asks a Question:

BASEBALL apparently is a game in which the old feel young, or stay that way, or something. In Washington, we had the good fortune to bump into the erudite Moe Berg and he was telling us how Boss Joe Cronin, of the Red Sox, had phoned him to ask how many games he could catch next year.

"Just because I advised him to get Frankie Pytlak, and Pytlak is a little brittle, he talked as though he thought I should catch about 50 games," reported Moe.

Practically everybody I met on my way home seemed to be en route for some dinner or other.

After staying up night and day with "Never Sleep Dick" Andrade in Dallas, "Wide Awake Amon" Carter in Ft. Worth, Morton Downey, Norvin Harris and George Riley in New Orleans, and Maestro Ernie Holst in Miami, I am in perfect shape for a brisk series of all-night workouts.

CALDER'S 'CHINESE' RULING GIVES BRUINS THE WORKS

Open warfare broke out between the Boston Bruins and Frank Calder, president of the National Hockey League, when Weston W. Adams, Bruins' president, indignantly stomped from a board of governors meeting in New York, last night, and threatened to "never attend another meeting unless Calder is removed and the Bruins are assured of just treatment."

Rights for the services of Argus Cameron, promising Regina junior, was responsible for the rift between Calder and Adams.

Adams went to New York last night to appeal to the board on the ruling but walked out in a huff when the board upheld Calder's findings by a majority vote.

WESTY ANGRY

Adams was fuming when he walked out of the meeting and, when reached for a statement a few hours later was extremely upset over Calder's action and didn't pull his punches.

"While it is true that the Bruins have been awarded the professional rights on Cameron, the technicalities of hockey's draft rule reveal that the possibility of his ever becoming Boston property is highly improbable.

"I feel that the decision of President Calder is against the best interests of the Boston Bruins and that over a period of years he has clearly taken action which has been prejudicial to my club. Furthermore, I am certain that his latest action is detrimental to professional hockey in general."

The Bruins' president claimed that they had Cameron on their negotiation list and were therefore entitled to exclusive services, which, should the youngster decide to play professional hockey.

Calder stated that although it was true that Cameron was on the Bruins' negotiation list, should he decide to play professional or minor league hockey he would become the property of the New York Rangers.

Unquestionably, the ruling is an involved one, but clearly it tends to favor the New York Rangers who doesn't accord the Bruins any of the rights they desired.

CAMERON GOOD PROSPECT

"It is quite obvious to me that so long as Calder remains at the head of the organization, the Bruins will never receive a just treatment and I am determined to never attend another meeting of the board unless I am certain that the hockey leaders will not violate the constitutional rights of the club."

And Adams is prepared to launch an aggressive fight for the services of Cameron. He says that the ruling sets a precedent in the N. H. L.

Cameron is believed to be the outstanding hockey prospect in Canada today, and Adams will not relinquish the fight for the services of the youngster.

This is just the opening blow in a battle which promises to be plenty hot for weeks to come.

Harvard Mermen Remain Unbeaten

Harvard's unbeaten swimming team had its fifth straight victory on the wall today, a convincing 62-13 triumph over Brown's natators.

Capt. Frannie Powers had a particularly good night. He not only won the 100 and 220-yard freestyle events but turned in the exceptionally fast time of 53.4 in the 100 while defeating Bob Schaper of Brown, who placed third in the national collegiates last year. It was the fastest time Powers ever turned in for the distance.

Harvard won eight of the nine events. Brown's lone win was registered by Schaper in the 50-yard free-style.

Guests at 'All' Dinner

The Board of Coaches will also be present. They are Bill Ohrenberger, Boston English; Jim Mansfield, Haverhill; Bill Broderick, Salem; Fred Ahlergren, Arlington; Ed "Skip" Sherlock, Hyde Park; Harry Downsbrookline; George Kenneally, Revere, and Dennis Gildea, Everett.

FITCHBURG CARNIVAL SKATE DERBY TUNEUP

An ideal tuneup for the February 16 Silver Skates Derby to be held at Boston Garden are the New England speed skating championships being held [illegible] day at Mirror Lake, Fitchburg.

Virtually all past Silver Skates Derby champions of the various divisions will toe the starting marks in this annual title tournament which is being held under the auspices of the Fitchburg Chamber of Commerce and the Fitchburg Park Department.

Howie Adams, well known to skating fans as a truly clever trick artist of every Silver Skates Derby since its inception, is in charge of the speed skating meet and promises the biggest and best New England championships ever.

Trials will be held in the morning starting at 10 o'clock and finals in the afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. The events are open only to registered New England skaters.

Championships events for men are at 220-yards, 440 yards, half-mile, mile, two miles, quarter-mile intermediates and 220 yard juveniles. Women's events are at 220-yards, quarter-mile and half-mile.

A diamond medal will be awarded to winners of each of the men's events and trophies to the winners of the women's and intermediate races and official New England championship medals in all events.

Balancing the program will be a number of figure skating exhibitions by members of the Commonwealth Skating Club of Boston, comedy and trick skating and barrel jumping by prominent artists.

The Silver Skates Derby editor strongly urges every boy and girl, man or woman who can possibly do so, to compete as training for the Derby.

Michigan Ace to Start In Prout Meet 2-Mile

Ralph Schwarzkopf, greatest distance runner the University of Michigan has produced, today entered the Leo Larrivee two-mile run, a feature of the 20th annual K. of C.-Prout games, to be held in the Boston Garden, Saturday, Jan. 25.

Tommy Deckard of Indiana and Joe McCluskey of Manchester, Ct., have already entered this race, for which Manager Bill Kenney is seeking the entries of Gregory Rice and Don Lash, those keen mid-western rivals.

The two-mile run has challenged the mile contest for recognition in recent indoor track campaigns, due to the fact that the longer race has become almost a sprint from the gun.

When Don Lash first broke nine minutes on the Boston Garden track three years ago, the spectators could not believe their eyes, but Lash's 8:58 record already has been broken by Gregory Rice, and a nine-minute performance is not infrequent.

Schwarzkopf was overtaken by Luigi Beccali, former Olympic champion, in the Y. F. W. two-mile run, but the Michigan star should be a real contender next week with the additional opportunity for training.

Beccali will run the mile next week, having been offered a chance to compete at the distance in which he proved supreme at Los Angeles in 1932.

On that occasion he vanquished the greatest mile field ever to meet in America, including Glenn Cunningham, and he is training rigorously under Pete Waters on the Manhattan College track in preparation for the Prout games.

He will warm up for the Jan. 25 Boston meet by competing in the Metropolitan A. A. U. mile in New York Saturday.

BEVERLY SHOOT, HEARST TEST

Of interest to the hundreds of participants in the William Randolph Hearst Citizen's Marksmanship Competition now in progress, is the sixth annual pistol tournament being held by the Beverly Rifle and Revlover Club, Inc., at its Beverly range Saturday and Sunday.

From a slimly attended one-day affair in 1936, this annual shoot has grown to a two-day title event jammed from start to finish.

One team and four individual matches are scheduled, the team event open to teams of five shooters from rifle or revolver clubs, or police or military organizations. Course of fire is 20 shots per man, slow fire, at 50 feet.

Individual events include a scratch match open to all and calls for scores of 10 shots each, slow fire; a tyro-scratch match open to persons who have not won a competition pistol medal; a handicap event open to all; and a ladies' match which is also at slow fire.

All matches are open to any pistol or revolver, except free pistols and will be fired on one of the largest pistol ranges in the state, with 14 firing points and the range comfortably heated.

AROUND TOWN with Mr. Boston.

To the Kenmore to see "Winning Baseball," National League film which was shown by Ethan Allen, old-time baseball star who is now a movie producer among other things . . . Getting a kick out of seeing Casey Stengel, Eddie Miller and other National League stars do their stuff for the movies . . . Sitting at head table with Allen at luncheon tendered to the baseball writers were Bob Quinn, John Quinn, Bob's boy, Park Commissioner Bill Long, Billy Mullin, Duffy Lewis and Boxing Commissioner Sam Smith.

Jack Onslow viewed the picture, and then started talking about some of the promising Bees' rookies . . . Bob Quinn spoke about the Bees' training camp at San Antone and the plans for the spring training . . . Allen told with enthusiasm of the high regard President Ford Frick and other National League executives have for Quinn . . . It is quite evident there is a league movement, which has the backing of Boston baseball fans, to see that Quinn remains in Boston as head of the Bees.

A trip to the Garden where I found Tommy Waters behind the box office trenches trying to find ways and means to get tickets for ice devotees for some of the Ice Follies show . . . Walter Brown of Garden, back on job after an attack of flu, regretting that Providence engagement of Ice Follies, which opens on Monday night, makes it impossible for the show to remain over for a few more nights. Oscar Johnson remarking that the country has become ice carnival conscious and that this season will see a new high for his show which is booked through April 2.

The Ice Follies will then disband for five weeks after which it will open a 16 weeks engagement in San Francisco . . . While playing the Ice Follies of 1941 evenings in San Francisco, the cast will spend its afternoons rehearsing the Ice Follies of 1942.

Armstrong-Zivic Bout Holds Interest

MATCHMAKER "RIP" VALENTI of the Goodwin A. C. calling off the Salomone-Bartolo bout billed for the Garden for next Wednesday night when informed Salomone is ill with the flu . . . Valenti then hurrying to New York to see the Armstrong-Zivic tussle that takes place tomorrow night . . . Valenti planning to match the winner with Mike Kaplan of Dorchester at the Garden in February.

Armstrong won from Ralph Zanelli and Paul Junior in hard bouts here early last year . . . Kaplan has scored a long list of victories in New York and Philadelphia rings and believes he can defeat either Armstrong or Zivic.

"I like Armstrong to beat Zivic in their return bout," Kaplan told me recently . . . "Armstrong lost his title on account of cuts over his eyes . . . Hammering Henry has had these old injuries treated and it is unlikely that his eyes will open up if hit tomorrow night."

George Freeman is also planning to take in the Armstrong-Zivic tussle . . . While in New York Freeman will take a peek at the four New York members of the Eastern All-America team who will battle in the grand national finals of the All-America tournament at the Boston Garden a week from Monday night . . . Freeman believes that the Eastern boxers will give a good account of themselves against the invading boxers from California and the Mid-West.

Chmielewski Goes Under Knife

HARRY KELLEY telling me that Henry Chmielewski, Polish middleweight, was operated upon to remove scarred tissue from over his left eye . . . Kelley said the condition of Chmielewski's eye caused the optic to close when hit . . . The Polish middleweight will be away from the ring wars for three to four weeks.

Sergeant Eddie Mack taking a train to Arizona where he will try to regain his full health . . . Eddie will remain in Arizona for two months after which time he will make a trip to California and visit Santa Anita.

Sam Simons entering a local hospital for a physical checkup . . . Joe Doherty, Boston's No. 1 sports fan, preparing to leave for Miami, Fla., the latter part of next week . . . Joe lived in Miami during boom days and has many friends in the Magic City.

Floyd Bell being mentioned as the likely selection for the berth of director of publicity at the Dighton dog track . . . Floyd was at one time associated with Suffolk Downs as head of the East Boston track's publicity department . . . Boston Skating Club under the direction of Richard L. Haggood making arrangements for a supper and party for the club's representatives in the national championships . . . The Bruins are prepared to give the Rangers a torrid session . . . The Rangers still rank as the top card among the visiting hockey clubs.

The announcement that Branch Rickey will be a speaker at the Baseball Writers' Association dinner at the Copley Plaza on January 30 assures that affair of being the great success it deserves to be . . . John Kieran, Johnny Cooney, Ford Frick, Dom DiMaggio and Jimmy Wilson have also been announced as attractions for the dinner . . . Two or three more speakers will be added to the list.

IT'S REALLY TRUE

Armstrong Underdog

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 (INS)—For one of the few times in his entire boxing career, Henry Armstrong — erstwhile triple crown-wearer—today was established as an under-dog for a fight.

The odds were 9 to 5 on Welterweight Champion Fritzie Zivic to retain the title he won from Armstrong last October, and many predicted the Pittsburgher would knock Armstrong out before they have travelled the scheduled 15 rounds tomorrow night.

Behind the one-sided odds was the assumption that Armstrong proved against Zivic in their previous meeting that he has slipped badly and never again will regain the form that made him one of the greatest fighters of this era.

He collapsed after taking a one-sided beating from Zivic before, and finally resorted to an operation to correct eye trouble which has bothered him in recent months.

His start tomorrow night will be his first since dropping the welterweight title, last of the three crowns he once wore.

Armstrong insisted today that his eyes are perfect and that he personally feels confident he will be as good as ever.

Cox Defeats Westy on Mat

Joe Cox practically clinched a shot at the world's heavyweight wrestling championship by defeating Marvin Westenberg in the Arena feature before 3500 fans last night.

Westy, ex-champ, won the first fall in 12:55 but Cox rallied to take the next two in 13:02 and 7:03 with top body presses.

In the semi-final Tom O'Toole beat Chris Zaharias with a drop-kick and press in 21:04.

Dan O'Mahony beat Ben Morgan by disqualification in 18:03; Pantaleon Manlapio beat Jim Spencer, 7:54; the Green Dragon beat Everett Kibbons, 11:25; and Marty Jones and Jack Wagoner drew in 20 minutes.

Salamone Has Flu, Bartolo Bout Off

The ten-round grudge battle between Salvatore Bartolo and Georgie Salamone, scheduled for the Garden, Jan. 22, was indefinitely postponed when the latter was stricken with influenza, it was announced by the Goodwin A. C.

The fistic session between the East Bostoners, who have been rivals right through their amateur boxing days until the present, keeps running into pitfalls.

Last year Bartolo was forced to withdraw from a scheduled encounter when he broke a hand in training.

Nashua Honors Jauron, Kissell Next Sunday

Citizens of Nashua, N. H., will honor Boston College footballers, Bob Jauron and Adolph "Butch" Kissell, at a testimonial banquet at the Nashua Country Club Sunday afternoon.

Jauron and Kissell, both juniors, were important members of the Boston College squad which rammed its way to the national grid title when it trimmed Tennessee in the Sugar Bowl.

George "Birdie" Tebbetts, Detroit Tigers catcher, and Peter Chesnulevitch, former Boston College back and now a teacher-coach at Nashua High School, are members of the committee in charge of the testimonial.

Tebbetts is a next door neighbor of Jauron, while Chesnulevitch was coach of both Jauron and Kissell when the present Eagles were high school athletes.

COAST'S NORDEN LETHAL PUNCHER, TRAINER WRITES

By WALTER KILEY

Connie Norden, heavyweight of the California team which will shortly be on its way to Boston Garden for the National All-America amateur boxing championships of Jan. 27, is the current "rave" of the Pacific Coast.

To hear the Californians tell it, Norden must be a combination of a Dempsey, Tunney and Louis. But let's hear from Art Martell, Australian-born trainer of the Coast team who will have charge of the invaders:

"There's nothing 'corny' about our Connie," the former Down-Under lightweight champion writes. "He's a 22-year-old San Francisco longshoreman built like an army tank and just as devastating in the damage he does.

"Norden is schooled by the well known Joe Herman, and the pupil has done the master proud. He knows all the tricks of the trade. He wasn't too well known by Los Angeles fight followers before our title tournament opened, but after he blasted into oblivion several of the finest heavyweight prospects we ever had out here, we began to appreciate the fact that we had a great professional prospect in our midst. Your Eastern heavy had better be good, or he'll be rocked to sleep by Connie. The kid can really punch."

ARTIST FIGHTER

Martell also sings the praises of the light-heavy he brings along on the California All-America title team.

Paul Cavagnaro is the name, and it seems that his special talents are not limited to the fight ring. Paul is an able cartoonist on a prominent San Francisco newspaper, and his daily drawings have attracted to him a large following.

"Cavagnaro put on the most spectacular performance we've seen in California in a decade in the Pacific Coast finals held before the movie crowd in Hollywood," Martell tells us.

"His opponent was Russell Metcalf of Los Angeles, a strong boy favorite of ours. The two tore into each other with a blistering barrage of rights and lefts from the opening bell. There was no quarter given or asked.

"Midway through the second round Cavagnaro dropped Metcalf with a short right to the chin. He took the count of nine, got up only to be shot to the canvas three more times before the referee mercifully stepped in and awarded Paul a technical knockout victory.

"It was the best action seen in a California ring in years."

LEAVE ON WEEK-END

While the Californians prepare to leave over the week-end for the jaunt East, the Mid-West All-America finalists are preparing for their championship show next week, one which will decide the makeup of the team which will battle it out for national acclaim against the East and California teams.

A year ago the finals were held in San Francisco, and the Mid-West as usual came up with a powerful group, one which captured four of the eight titles, the East and the Pacific Coast dividing up equally the other four.

JACK THE PUNCHER—Buddy Jacklich of San Francisco flattens Chuckie Garcia of Los Angeles in Pacific Coast All-America bouts. Jacklich is the standout performer of the Far West team which will box in the Garden here Jan. 27. He won 11 of his 12 trial bouts on the Coast by knockouts.

Cocky, shrewd, fiery-tempered and a dangerous scorer despite his short, slim build . . . that was Aurel Joliat of Les Canadiens, capable flanker of Howie Morenz for ten years . . . L. sight, began his 16-year career with the Canadiens in '22 . . . a consistently high scorer, he rang up 32 points in his 13th season and made 35 points or better six times . . . he was equally adept in setting up scoring passes for Morenz and netting the puck himself. ICE BOWL GAME

B. C. to Face Green Six

Boston College's classy hockey team will play its most important game of the year tomorrow night when it meets Dartmouth at the Arena.

The Eagles will be after their eighth straight win after their opening game loss to Yale.

Victory by the Eagles will open the way to an amazing record of 14 straight decisions, because Dartmouth is by all odds the most powerful team the Eagles will be called upon to face between here and the end of a 15-game season.

Having defeated Dartmouth, 4-3, at Rye, N. Y., during the Christmas holidays, the Eagles hope to avenge last season's two losses to the Green by posting a pair of victories this winter.

Included on the Dartmouth six are Capt. Fred Maloon of Belmont, Johnny Krol of Waltham and Harry O'Connor, a sophomore who was a mainstay of the powerful Framingham high school team will be called upon to compete against a fellow townie in Boston College's Capt. Johnny Pryor. Both O'Connor and Pryor play right wing posts on their respective teams.

Boston College will be weakened at defense if Bobby Mee is not ready for action. Mee, Arlington junior, injured a knee and shoulder when he collided with an opponent in the Boston University game on Tuesday.

Bob didn't compete against the Wildcats of New Hampshire University, whom the Eagles tagged for their seventh straight conquest at Durham, N. H., yesterday, 11 to 1.

Charlie Wagner Signs Sox Contract

READING, Pa., Jan. 16 (AP)—Charlie Wagner, Boston Red Sox pitcher, has signed his 1941 contract and will be in the first group to report to Sarasota, Fla., camp next month. Wagner is getting his fourth trial with Joe Cronin's tossers. He won 13 straight games after dropping his first start for Louisville in the American Ass'n. He was optioned to the Colonels in midseason.

British Yachtsmen Awarded Medal

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 (INS)—This year's blue water medal award of the Cruising Club of America went to the hundreds of amateur British yachtsmen, all unsung heroes, who aided in the evacuation of 400,000 British soldiers at Dunkerque last May.

The award, usually given to an amateur yachtsman who has performed a feat of seamanship or navigation, will probably be given to one of the British yacht clubs to hold.

N. U. ATHLETES ACTIVE ON WEEK-END

Tomorrow night the varsity basketball team meets New Hampshire in a New England College Conference League game at Johnson Memorial Gymnasium, while the hockey team plays Bowdoin at Brunswick.

On Saturday the ice men move over to Waterville to meet Colby and the varsity track team travels to Lewiston for a dual meet with Bates.

The freshman runners will stay at home for a dual meet with Huntington, and the freshman basketball team will meet New Hampshire in a preliminary to the varsity game tomorrow night.

The outlook for both the hockey and track squads is excellent because of recent performances. Herb Gallagher's puck men have thrown off the mental depression suffered when ace Ed Barry became ineligible. They out-played Boston College in the last two periods of their recent game and then made an overwhelming triumph against M. I. T.

Illness has hurt the hockey squad somewhat, but Coach Herb Gallagher expects to have his outfit at full strength for the trip. Capt. Johnny Chipman suffered a strained back in [illegible] I. T. game but he hopes to be available.

Coach Jerry Tatton expects to have a very strong dual track meet particularly on the basis of the Huskies' showing in the New England Championships last Saturday.

Bill Carroll won the 1000-yard title, while twin Bob and Ed Parker, Mike Prohodsky, and Colby Kelley all took away medals.

Ed Macfarland, star sprinter and hurdler, showed the effects of his football injury in the Vets' meet, but he probably will be all set for dual competition.

NONPAREILS—Bobby and Ruby Maxson whose capers as anchor team in famous "Swing Waltz" have endeared them to skating enthusiasts all over the nation. Bobby, 20 now, and Ruth, 18, are currently showing with the "Ice Follies of 1941" at Garden. They have been with the show three years.

Swing Waltz No. 1 Act; Maxsons Put It Over

By WALTER KILEY

With a swish and a swirl, with a dash and a verve, Bobby and Ruby Maxson bring up the tag end of the famous Swing Waltz, the oldest but ever new dance number which is captivating Ice Follies audiences at the Garden this week.

It's a beautiful dance from beginning to end, this graceful, lovely Swing Waltz with its dozen talented pairs making the Garden rounds as boy pilots girl with her billowing skirts all awhirl.

But it's Bobby and Ruby, brother and sister, who fan the Garden spectators to frenzied acclaim.

It's this tiny little team, youngest combination in the professional ice world, who add that extra little flare, that final "oomph" as they swing wider and wider with dexterous balance and precision, and put the finishing touches to the most popular feature of the Ice Follies program.

As Oscar Johnson, leading impresario of the show, remarks:

"If we had to cut the Ice Follies to just one number, it would be the Swing Waltz we would retain. Audiences everywhere never seem to tire of it. And Bobby and Ruby are ideal as the anchor pair."

As Nordic dolls in the "Toy Antics," the Maxsons create a lovely impression of figure skating artistry. Blond Bobby and chestnut-haired Ruby seem to sense each other's slightest movement and they respond almost as a single unit.

But Boston's gallery is even more impressed with the youngsters as they perform their Swing Waltz movements. When they go sweeping in to their finish, the crowd roars out encore demands.

Bobby is now 20, Ruby 18. They come from Duluth, Michigan, where Bobby says there is a hockey rink or a skating area on almost every street corner.

"I was 12 and Ruby 10 when Mother tried to get us interested in figure skating," Bobby tells. "Neither of us had ever had a skate on. It seemed too sissified to me, and I rebelled.

"Ruby soon showed special promise, and I thought I'd try it out. We got to love the sport and shortly began to take lessons from Roy Shipstad, who was then teaching in Duluth.

"Roy trained Ruby and me for two years and gradually we worked into many ice carnivals in amateur roles that Oscar Johnson, Roy and Eddie Shipstad put on in Duluth, St. Paul, Minneapolis and eventually in the Chicago Stadium.

"We joined the Follies three years ago, and life has been wonderful since. It's been one grand experience, with opportunities for extensive travel and liberal education that we never could have had otherwise.

"One day when we were rehearsing in San Francisco, Oscar received a letter from a lady on the Coast asking him to try Ruby and me out on the end of the Swing Waltz. He did so, and we've stuck there for a year and a half now.

"At first I was a bit afraid of the spot. But now we both get a load of fun out of bringing up the exciting rear end. And we truly do enjoy every moment of it. So do the other members of the cast."

Greenberg's Draft Call Upsets Tigers

By HERB FINNEGAN

The major league rosters were starting to come in. The Cubs were bringing up Lou Novikoff, supposedly the greatest right-handed hitter to enter the N. L. since Hornsby. Nicholson and Lieber would be with him in the outfield. Strong there.

Good prospects in the infield with Myers, Storey and Waitkus to help out Hack and Herman. McCullough was a fine catching prospect. Healthy outlook except in pitching, and probably better there with Jimmy Wilson holding the reins. Ought to get up in the first division.

Thoughts of the other clubs. The intra-league trade rule would hurt Detroit. Trainer Denny Carroll, "their best player," had quit. Gehringer and Bartell were too old to hold up another year.

Cleveland had strengthened appreciably and they had a new manager. The Yankees were depending on a bunch of kids. Brooklyn had added Higbe. Let's try a long range forecast on the '41 pennant races.

American League	National League
Cleveland	Brooklyn
New York	Cincinnati
Chicago	Pittsburgh
Detroit	Chicago
St. Louis	BOSTON
BOSTON	St. Louis
Washington	New York
Philadelphia	Philadelphia

TED LOW ON RED SOX?

Frank Fenway looks over the list.

"You're too low on the Red Sox. If Cronin sticks to his plan of letting his kid pitchers finish the games they start they're going to get up there."

Probably, but if a manager can't get four pitchers working in rotation once in six years, what makes him think he can do it in his seventh year? And the Sox still have a shortstop problem.

"Cincinnati's got the pitching," says Mr. Fenway. "They'll breeze in again."

Probably, but the Dodgers have added Higbe and Casey will do better this year.

The morning papers came in.

"DRAFT GREENBERG FOR ARMY JUNE 1" strikes the eye, and one wonders how it is possible to make any concrete predictions on the '41 race.

Take Greenberg out of the Tigers lineup, and you might as well take Joe Louis' right arm.

Take Feller away from Cleveland (he's liable to go, too), and we'll give the Indians back to the Indians.

Take Dom DiMaggio and Ted Williams away from the Red Sox (they're liable to go, too), and we'll take the St. Augustines of the Park League.

And so it goes.

WHITEMAN '18 SERIES HERO

During the World War, baseball went along serenely in 1917. In 1918 most of the eligibles jumped into the Navy. So great was the toll that the pennant-winning Red Sox of that year used an obscure minor leaguer named Whiteman in left field. He was the hero of the World Series against Fred Mitchell's Cubs that year but couldn't hold his job in 1919 when the regulars returned.

How will the draft affect the clubs this year? Plenty of the boys are married, to be sure, but young clubs like the Bees might well be ruined in a couple of months.

And who can tell when the war will end?

Suppose, as many think, that it will go on for three more years. How good will the Greenbergs and the Fellers and the Williamses and the Reeses and the DiMaggios be after three years in the service?

Baseball, as well as world, history is in the making.

Threaten Badminton

Eddie Bauer of Seattle, shuttlecock producer, reports the European war has shut off the source of supply of tail feathers for the bounding birds.

Strong, tough wing feathers from Balkan geese have been relied upon. American goose quills, he said, lack the necessary toughness for the battering they must take.

The following telegram was received at Fenway Park from Dr. Lester Edblom, who operated on Bobby at Eugene, Ore.:

"Doerr's condition good after appendectomy. Will probably be in hospital 10 days. Expect complete recovery in three or four weeks. Will wire any change in condition."

Draft Closing in On Detroit Slugger

DETROIT, Jan. 16 (AP)—Uncle Sam's draft is coming closer and closer to Hank Greenberg.

The lanky Tiger slugger's number—621—is climbing toward the top of the list of local draft board No. 23, and it is considered likely that home-run Hank will get his questionnaire in two or three weeks. His call to service is expected in the spring.

If Hank goes into the Army, there will be moaning in Briggs Stadium. On the other hand, the Army may rejoice, for Greenberg, industrious and conscientious, would set a first-class example for other toiling rookies in Army khaki if he works as hard for Uncle Sam as he has worked for the Detroit Tigers.

"First on the field and the last to leave"—that's what ball players have said of Greenberg. He labors long and earnestly. Even in the locker room he practices his batting swing.

Friends say Hank talks, eats and sleeps baseball, and he's said himself that hard work made him a star. "I never had the natural ability of a lot of these fellows," he declared. "I just got it by working."

Critics say, too, that his application to the job made him a successful outfielder last season after he was shifted from first base "for the good of the club." He kept up his home run quota and was rated the American League's "most valuable player."

Believed to be baseball's highest paid player, Greenberg is reputed to draw $36,000 a year from the Tigers. The army pay will knock that down about 99 per cent.

W. H. Wells, chief clerk of Draft Board No. 23, said: "If the number of draftees into the army continues at the present rate, Greenberg probably will be called some time in May and hardly later than June 1."

Greenberg is 29 years old and single.

TWO A'S SIGN

Mize Eyes Ruth Mark

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 16 (AP)—A former manager of the Cardinals once said if Johnny Mize would start a season without being overweight he'd hit so many home runs that Babe Ruth's record of 60 would be in real jeopardy. Last year Mize hit .431.

The big first-baseman admitted today he was 20 pounds overweight, but he's going into training four weeks early in an effort to get into condition before reporting at the Cardinals' spring camp in St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 28. So watch out, record!

"I'm going to Hot Springs about Feb. 1," he said, "and take the baths and play some golf to lose weight. I hope to take off at least 15 pounds before I go to Florida."

When the season opens on National League fences, Mize expects to start firing home runs from the ve r first day, and he sees that "60" of Ruth's well within reach.
